Legion Asks for 'All Practicable Aid' to Britain

Names Milwaukee
Convention City;
Pleads for Defense

Boston, Mass.—(P)—Without discussion or opposition, the American Legion's twenty-second convention called today for "all practicable aid" to Great Britain and urged creation of the strongest possible defense for the United States after demanding action against subversive activities.

The convention's 1,400 delegates, representing more than 1,000,000 former service men, took its stand by approving in its entirety a long list of recommendations drafted by the defense committee.

Included among these were resolutions calling for an impregnable defense of the approaches to the Panama canal and a permanent military training system for this country.

The action came shortly after the legion selected Milwaukee as its 1941 convention city. Previously, the legionnaires adopted a program which in effect declared "war" on all subversive activities and called for rigid control of all aliens.

Many Resolutions

The twenty-second annual convention interrupted the swift shaping of its stand on issues growing out of the war abroad and the defense program at home only long enough to settle a dispute over the location of the next convention.

The roll call vote by states was so heavily in favor of the Wisconsin city, which offered a convention purse of $120,000, that a spokesman for the Kansas City adherents conceded defeat before the roll was completed. Both before and after this contest, however, the convention dealt with literally hundreds of resolutions.

The legion first heard and then adopted the Americanism committee report which demanded the registration of all bond and communist party members, together with congressional action to provide "rigid supervision" of all aliens. Members of "subversive groups" would be barred from holding public office.

Also adopted were recommendations calling for a ban on foreign-language radio programs, the outlawing of all organizations bearing the names of foreign countries and the barring of mail to "un-American organizations."

World Report Bridges

The legionnaires adopted a resolution demanding the deportation of Harry Bridges, west coast labor leader.

They voted also for the establishing of junior R. O. T. C. units in all state training and industrial schools.

While the head of the legion's national defense committee prepared to bring forward a many-sided preparedness outline, the convention heard William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, suggest that the A. F. of L. and the veterans work together to "outlaw" subversive activities.

Green declared also that the federation, which once opposed compulsory military service, now would support it. He asserted that labor would do whatever it could to "help the government make the draft a success and to protect the rights of millions of young men who are drafted in the next few years."

Meanwhile, Boston began to return to normalcy after one of the biggest legion parades in history. More than 100,000 marchers streamed past a throng estimated at 3,000,000 in a colorful procession that began at 9 a. m. and did not end until after 9 p. m. Thousands of the veterans turned toward their homes today, as the 1,500 convention delegates got down to work.

Prior to tackling scores of defense and other resolutions, the convention already had before it the action of the legion's national executive committee, calling upon the federal communications commission to deny the use of radio facilities to "groups known to be subservient to a foreign country."

President Approves Barracks Measure

Washington—(P)—A $338,263,002 appropriation bill to provide barracks and other facilities for military draftees was signed today by President Roosevelt.

Uses Motion Pictures To Sell Horse

William Belknap, owner of the Land O'Goshen farms in Kentucky, used a color motion picture to sell a stallion to a horse breeder in South Africa. The breeder liked the horse after seeing him in action in the color film and completed the deal when horse experts of the University of Kentucky guaranteed soundness. ## First Draft Quota Cut as Volunteers Speed Enlistments

Good Part of Required Total Will be Met Without Resort to Conscription

Washington—(P)—Voluntary army enlistment offers pouring into selective service headquarters today indicated that a sizeable part of the first compulsory service quota of 400,000 men might be filled without a draft.

Recalling that 435,000 men volunteered from April through August in 1917, selective service officials anticipated in the coming weeks a rush of men anxious to complete their year's training and be done with it.

Selective service officials pointed to the comparatively numerous inquiries already received at state offices, army recruiting centers, newspaper offices, and headquarters here.

A typical inquiry came from a young Idaho lawyer who wanted to put his military service behind him in order that he might take up legal practice later without fear of being interrupted. He was advised that he, or any other man from 18 to 36, could volunteer to his local draft board and be accepted for service unless deferred.

Cuts Down Draft

The more enlistments in a given draft district, the smaller the number that will be taken from it by compulsory conscription.

Officers suggested that voluntary enlistment might be particularly attractive to young men of 18, 19 or 20 who want to finish their military training before starting a college course or business career.

Speaking of volunteers of a non-military kind, Major Chauncey Parker, finance officer of the army and navy selective service committee, said indications were that

McKellar and Wiley in Sharp Partisan Clash

Washington—(P)—In a slam-bang argument in the senate yesterday, a Democrat accused Wendell Willkie of charging "power patrons of Tennessee a 5,000 per cent profit" while a Republican asserted that "sewer rats" played an important part in the Democratic national convention in Chicago.

Senator McKellar (D-Tenn.) called attention to Willkie's speech at

End of Session Not in Sight

Barkley Believes
Term May Continue Until Christmas

Washington—(P)—Christmas replaced the coming weekend in some adjournment forecasts today, and opponents of the controversial Logan-Walter bill conceded that the senate would take up and probably pass the measure if congress remained in session.

Senator Minton of Indiana, Democratic whip and a foe of the Logan-Walter legislation, said it appeared to him that, barring early adjournment, proponents probably would be able to force consideration and eventual passage of the bill, which would impose new legal curbs on the decisions of such governmental agencies as the labor relations board.

That congress might be here until Christmas was the opinion of Senator Barkley of Kentucky, Democratic leader, who told the senate yesterday he was informed that the house of representatives at the present moment would not vote to adjourn, and might not even agree to a post-election recess.

"If it does not vote to adjourn and does not vote to recess," he said, "it will be in session continuously until Christmas."

Senator Clark (D-Mo.) said he had been informed that Speaker Rayburn thought that the house would adjourn, but Barkley said that was not his information.

Seeks Immediate Investigation of Violence in Strike

New York—(P)—Queens County District Attorney Charles P. Sullivan said today he would seek an immediate grand jury investigation into the strike at the Triangle Conduit and Cable company. In rioting that occurred near the plant yesterday 20 policemen were injured, automobiles were overturned, and a man died—apparently of a heart attack.

The trouble occurred when 3,000 strike sympathizers attempted to prevent non-striking workers from entering the plant.

Mayor LaGuardia, when questioned today about a published report that he had ordered policemen assigned to the strike scene not to use their clubs or guns, replied: "I don't think there is very much to that."

The strike was called Aug. 1 by a local of the International Brotherhood of Electric Workers (AFL) after a dispute over wages and hours.

London, Berlin Are Subjected To Aerial Raids

Second Successive
Night Attack Made
On German Capital

London—(P)—For two and a half hours heavy bombers of the Royal Air Force blasted at "military objectives" in the heart of Berlin during the night, the air ministry announced today, in the second successive night of attack on the German capital.

The raid spanned midnight, starting shortly after 10:30 p. m. when the British vanguard, "evading the intense barrage of the city's ground defenses, located and bombed the great Siemens and Halske factories which produce a large proportion of the electrical equipment used by the German armed forces," said the ministry's communique.

Two "great fires" blossomed up under the raiding planes.

German planes roared over central London today, into a furnace of anti-aircraft fire, and were reported driven off while terrific explosions across the English channel signaled a daylight renewal of British night raids on the German-held "invasion" coast.

The heaviest of London's barrage fire seemed to come from a southwestern district.

Coastal Bases Hit

An Exchange Telegraph correspondent reported from England's southeast coast that explosions heard across the Strait of Dover seemed to be the heaviest of any of the British bombings on German coastal bases in France.

The Nazi air force struck back in kind.

Shortly before noon nearly 100 invading planes appeared over the southwestern English coast, splitting into three groups for their assaults. Alarms were sounded at several coastal towns.

A number of bombs fell at one town, one digging up a roadway and cutting the water and electrical supply. Three bombs struck the beach, showering pebbles over a one-mile radius.

Raiders Push On

In spite of terrific anti-aircraft fire the raiders pressed on inland, where it was believed they were intercepted by British fighters.

In an air fight over a southwest England coastal area today about twenty German bombers, apparently

Government Rests In Income Tax Case

Chicago—(P)—The government rested its case against William R. Johnson today, having presented nearly 150 witnesses in an attempt to prove that Johnson evaded $1,687,964 in income taxes from 1936 to 1939.

Floyd E. Thompson, chief counsel for Johnson, moved at once for a directed verdict of acquittal, telling Federal Judge John P. Barnes that there still was no proof that taxes had been willfully evaded.

Thompson contended the court could not accept the government's claim that Johnson was one of the overlords of gambling in Cook county and the owners of a score of flourishing gaming houses. A map of Cook county, with colored pins denoting the location of Johnson's alleged establishments, was one of the last pieces of evidence introduced by the prosecution.

Sentenced to Prison In Tax Refund Frauds

Wisconsin Rapids—(P)—William Grab, 25-year-old farm youth of the town of Rudolph, was sentenced in county court today to four concurrent terms of one to three years in the state prison on his plea of guilty to charges of fraud in connection with state gas tax refunds.

The information listed 45 counts against Grab and charged he had fraudulently obtained $2,249.92 from the state in a period from September, 1937, to April, 1940.

The state contended Grab forged endorsements on gas tax refund checks and obtained checks under false pretenses.

Japan May Enter Alliance With Axis to Gain Territory in Orient

(Glenn Babb, day cable editor of the Associated Press in New York, who has wide contacts in the Orient due to many years spent there, especially as chief of the Associated Press bureau in Tokyo, received word today of impending far-reaching politico-military developments which would vitally affect United States interests in the far Pacific. What they are, and what they may mean, he describes in the following story.)

BY GLFNN BABB

New York—(P)—Japan is on the verge of announcing whether she will enter into an alliance with Germany and Italy, trustworthy advisers received by the Associated Press said today.

A special mission sent by Adolf Hitler has received a warm welcome in Tokyo, these advisers said, and formal announcement of a new pact that may change drastically the map of the Orient is expected shortly.

Whether such a pact would plunge Japan immediately into war with Britain is not clear, but it is believed she is moving to make sure she will have a full share in the redistribution of territory and power which Hitler and Mussolini have disclosed will come if and when they defeat Britain.

Last week in Rome the axis powers drafted their new map for Africa and Europe, and Berlin dispatches indicate they will seal this part of the bargain ceremoniously this week in Berlin, with Spain a participant.

The projected Japanese alliance undoubtedly would provide for a similar redrafting of the map of Asia, the largest of the continents, and the rich islands fringing it.

Japan wants France's Indo-China and Holland's East Indies and seems in a fair way to fastening her control on them. If Britain falls, she wants much of what Britain loses in the Orient, perhaps even in India and Australia.

Fighting Continuing at Dakar, De Gaulle Says

Ciano to Go to Berlin to Confer on War Plans

Berlin—(P)—Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano will be on his way to Berlin by tomorrow for further conferences on the axis war program, a usually well-informed source declared today.

Authorized sources would neither confirm nor deny that Ciano was coming so soon, but said: "When we telephoned Rome a few minutes ago he was still there."

Political sources here are generally of the opinion that Ciano will participate in some solemn ceremony of signature.

Whether Spanish Minister Ramon Serrano Suner, who was reported to have visited Adolf Hitler today, also will participate in the ceremony could not be learned.

It is known, however, that the protocol office of the Wilhelmstrasse is preparing for some sort of ceremony.

(The Berlin radio announced that Hitler received Serrano Suner, in the chancellery at noon. It was the second talk between the two Crowds waiting outside the chancellery during the meeting testified to Berlin's interest in the Spaniard's mission.)

(The radio said the assumption "is crystallizing in political quarters" that the conversations between Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Italian leaders in Rome would be continued in Berlin Friday with both Serrano Suner and Ciano taking part.)

(The radio mentioned an "even more far-reaching rumor" that this Berlin conference would be followed by a meeting in Rome.)

Halt Ordered In Jap Attack

Hanoi, Indo-China—(P)—The military situation along a 50-mile frontier section 80 miles northeast of Hanoi was obscured today after Japanese advance forces cut communications between the Indo-China capital and Langson, center of the northern border defense line.

Informed sources said the Tokyo government had ordered General Teizo Ando, commanding Japan's South China army, to halt the attack commenced the night of Sept. 22.

The Indo-China government issued a statement reaffirming its willingness to carry out the Vichy-Tokio pact and the more detailed agreement reached Sept. 22 with Japanese representatives.

The statement also reaffirmed Indo-China's determination to oppose with force all efforts of the Japanese South China army to push across the northern frontier of Indo-China in what the government said was "absolute violation" of the accord granting Japan limited military rights. The French insist they agreed to permit Japanese to enter only by the port of Haiphong.

The government said the agreement contained formal Japanese guarantees to respect Indo-China's territorial integrity and French sovereignty over the territory and that the pact "precisely limited" the military facilities granted Japan.

Woman Found Clubbed To Death in Farmhouse

Horsham, Pa.—(P)—An attractive young woman found clubbed to death on the dusty stairway of an unoccupied farmhouse was linked today to a prominent southern family in a statement her husband made to police.

Her head and face beaten, Mrs. Ethel M. Atkins, 35-year-old mother of three-year-old twin sons, was discovered in the two and one-half story building last night, clad only in stockings and one slipper.

She was identified 14 hours later by her husband, James F. Atkins, Philadelphia bricklayer.

District Attorney Frederick B. Smillie said Atkins declared in a statement that the slain woman, whose maiden name was Ethel Craft, had first been married to John Cicero Angier, of Durham, N. C., a relative of the wealthy Duke family.

They found a strong Japanese army.

Two Buildings Are Shattered By Explosion

Entire Community
Rocked but Workers
Are Not Badly Hurt

Clairton, Pa.—(P)—A terrific explosion of resin and oils today shattered two buildings at the Pennsylvania Industrial Chemical Corporation's plant and rocked this entire Monongahela river steel-producing community.

None of the corporation's 32 employees was in the buildings, but a half-dozen were burned slightly by flying tar and chemicals.

The blast, followed by fire that was checked quickly, occurred in the agitating department building where oils and resins are broken down in the first process of paint manufacture.

The corrugated sheet iron and brick structure was twisted and smashed into a heap of debris and an adjoining office and laboratory building was wrecked.

Firemen, using chemicals and water, kept the flames from reaching eight nearby storage tanks containing about 250,000 gallons of highly inflammable solvents.

Bricks, hunks of steel and other debris were hurled several hundred yards from the plant. The force of the explosion knocked 17-year-old Mike Zumbo from bed at his home 400 yards distant.

A company chemist reported a "warning rumble" preceded the blast and expressed the opinion that naphthalene, pouring from burst tanks, ignited. Flames shot 200 feet into the air.

Foreman Joseph McKallip said the company, in addition to manufacturing paint, also processes solvents for other companies, some of which he said held government defense orders. Firemen declined to estimate the damage or give an opinion on the cause of the explosion.

Accused of Embezzling From Loan Association

Cedarburg, Wis.—(P)—Fred Armbruster was arraigned before Justice of the Peace John Bay yesterday on a charge of embezzling funds of the Cedarburg Building and Loan association.

Armbruster, secretary of the association, is a member of the Ozaukee county board.

He was released on $25,000 bond and ordered to appear for a preliminary hearing, the date of which was not set pending completion of an audit of the association's books by state bank examiners. Armbruster made no statement at his arraignment.

District Attorney Frank X. Didier made the complaint on which the warrant was based. He acted upon information presented by bank examiners.

Rescued Two Men From Sewer Trench Cave-in

Two Rivers—(P)—Fellow workers, assisted by police and firemen, dug for more than 30 minutes in trapping two men who were trapped by the cave-in of the walls of a sewer trench in which they were working. Matt Studen, 54, suffered a broken hip and injuries to the pelvis. Herbert Floor, 28, was cut and bruised.

French Air Attack on Gibraltar

Vichy—(P)—Two British warships — the battleship Resolution and the heavy cruiser Kent — suffered direct hits when French warplanes dropped nearly 100 tons of bombs on the units attempting to wrest Dakar, "key to the south Atlantic," from its French defenders, an official announcement said tonight.

All communications with the capital of French West Africa have been down since noon yesterday, however, and today passed without confirmation of rumors that the city had surrendered.

London—(P)—Headquarters of General Charles de Gaulle's "free French" forces said this afternoon that "operations at Dakar are continuing."

(A German radio broadcast said British warships twice shelled Dakar today, at 7:30 a. m. and 10:30 a. m., after making additional attempts to land troops during the night. It added there was a rumor that "another British cruiser" has been damaged.)

Spokesmen for De Gaulle here asserted a number of the general's supporters in Dakar had been arrested recently by the authorities there, who, they said, were "completely under the control of the Germans and Italians." They expressed belief that the French warships which passed Gibraltar recently bound for Senegal probably carried trained forces adhering to the Vichy government, to replace those in Senegal known to favor De Gaulle.

Vichy—(P)—Unconfirmed and conflicting reports that Dakar, capital of French West Africa, had surrendered to the "free French" and British expedition circulated here today.

It could not be learned with certainty whether the city still was holding out or whether the expeditionary troops had gained a foothold on the African coastline, taking the "key to the south Atlantic."

No official news from Dakar had been announced since yesterday at 1 p. m. (6 a. m. C. S. T.), when the British were reported starting a violent raid.

(It was noted that reports of French planes bombing Gibraltar were circulated here yesterday afternoon but it was impossible to obtain official confirmation or denial. Today the government announced officially that an unspecified number of French planes bombed Gibraltar for two hours yesterday in reprisal for British action against Dakar with General Charles de Gaulle's "free French" forces.)

Damage Increases

Later details reaching the French admiralty said more violent fighting in the afternoon yesterday at Dakar resulted in a considerable greater number of victims and more damage to the city than the British morning action which killed 183 persons and wounded 363 others.

A naval ministry communique said the civilian casualties included 65 dead and 225 injured.

Dakar dispatches said the 35,000-ton battleship Richelieu, while unable to navigate, used her heavy guns in defense.

Other French war vessels penned in the harbor likewise were reported replying to the British fire.

The naval ministry said six attempts to land troops had been repulsed yesterday.

Gibraltar Raid

La Linea, Spain—(P)—French planes from Morocco, resumed the bombing of Gibraltar this afternoon. The raids were resumed at 2:35 p. m. (8:35 a. m. C. S. T.).

The planes attacked the arsenal and other points on the rock, setting fire to several buildings.

Although the bombing started with the planes coming over in groups of four, this gave way at 3:25 p. m. to an attack by 14 planes. They dumped their entire bomb loads almost simultaneously, and smoke billowed up from the vicinity of the arsenal and from the streets of the town.

Other bombs fell near the warships in the harbor, but none, apparently, was hit.

No British fighter planes were aloft.

In all, the raiding squadrons totaled about 40 planes.

At 3:30 p. m., they were coming over in waves of 10, roaring low and dropping their bombs, and they still were cruising over the rock after 4 o'clock p. m.

Several buildings were afire.

Sentenced to Prison On Charge of Robbery

Law Clair—(P)—Alva Armstrong, 43, of Topsham, pleaded guilty to a robbery charge yesterday and was sentenced in circuit court to one to five years' imprisonment. Armstrong was arrested two weeks ago as he was released from state prison after serving an 18-month sentence for theft.

Campaigns to Get Underway After Parleys

New Deal Question Drums Up Interest In 1-Day Meetings

BY KENNETH HOPPING
Madison—(P)—The general election campaign in Wisconsin will get going full blast after state candidates nominated on the three major party tickets in the primary assembly in Madison next Tuesday for their one-day platform conventions. As a rule these conventions are not momentous affairs. They must be held because the law requires them, but particular interest will be taken this year by candidates and political managers who want to know which way the New Deal wind is blowing.

The statutory platform meetings have two principal purposes. One is to draw up declarations of principles to guide the voters in deciding where the parties stand on issues. Another is to elect the state chairman and central committee of each party for the next two years.

Third Term Issue
Stealing the show at the Democratic and Progressive deliberations will be the question of endorsing President Roosevelt for a third term and supporting or rejecting his policies in relation to the European war.

Anti-New Dealers met with some success in the Democratic primary election and what the party's state platform has to say or fails to say about the Roosevelt administration may depend on the sentiments of the legislative nominees who, with 117 members, will convene nearly all the votes in the convention.

The Progressive party supported the president in his first two campaigns, but is faced this year with the fact that its top ranking candidate, United States Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., is running for reelection as an advocate of strict isolation from the European conflict. LaFollette has declared that the Roosevelt foreign policies are leading the nation down the road to war.

The Republican convention, on the other hand, will be strongly anti-Roosevelt and pro-Willkie as has been demonstrated in advance. All three meetings will convene in the state capitol. All will start at the same hour—12 noon—and will be separated only by a few walls and corridors.

The present state chairman will call the conventions to order, committees will be appointed, the platforms will be thrashed out in executive sessions and party organization machinery for the next biennium will be set up.

Because they polled the biggest vote in the primary election—equal to the totals of the other two parties combined—the Republicans will have the use of the state assembly chamber, which has the greatest seating capacity.

The Progressives will meet in the senate chamber and the Democrats will gather in another capitol room but may adjourn later to outside quarters having better accommodations.

Phil Says State GOP Regime Repudiated Pension Promises

Gays Mills—(P)—Former Governor Philip LaFollette declared in a Progressive campaign address last night that the Republican state administration "repudiated its glittering pension promises of 1938."

"Although Republicans outpromised rival parties on old age pensions, they wound up after 21 months in office by paying an average old age pension of only $22 a month," he said.

LaFollette recalled that a senate bill to boost pensions to $4 a month was "kicked around for eight months" in legislative committees before it was "smothered to death" by adjournment last October.

"Most significant of all," he added, "was the way in which the state administration turned down the federal government's offer of more pension money."

"The government offered to pay up to $20 a month for pensions if the state would match this amount and thus make it possible to pay a maximum of $40 a month. When a bill to bring this about was passed by the legislature, Governor Heil vetoed the $2,500,000 appropriation in the measure."

"He turned the federal government down cold on its offer to grant added security to Wisconsin's aged and he directly repudiated promises made to the old folks," LaFollette said.

When the Progressives were in power, LaFollette declared, they pioneered in the field of old age pensions.

Clinton, Ind., Woman Heads Legion Auxiliary

Boston—(P)—The American Legion auxiliary today unanimously elected Mrs. Louis J. Lemstra of Clinton, Ind., its national president for the coming year. The only other nominee was Mrs. J. Allison Hardy of Columbus, Miss., former national historian, who withdrew.

Racine Man Acquires Wyoming Newspaper

Thermopolis, Wyo.—(P)—George C. McCormick, a former president of the Colorado Press association and the Iowa Editorial association, reports the sale of the Thermopolis Independent-Record and Journal to Kenneth R. Byerly of Racine, Wis.

Donley Pledges Full Support for Clausen

Milwaukee—(P)—Roy L. Brecke, campaign manager for Fred H. Clausen, announced yesterday receipt of a telegram from Willis D. Donley pledging support to Clausen in his race for the United States senate.

Donley, a defeated Republican congressional candidate and a Garner delegate to the Democratic national convention in Chicago, said he "came into the Republican party as one of the original anti-third termers and as a life-long anti-LaFollette fighter."

Donley said that he was supporting the Republican ticket "all along the line."

Prepare for Grave Economic Dangers: Sloan

Final Accounting Sure to Come, GMC Executive Claims

Pittsburgh—(P)—Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., chairman of General Motors Corporation, urges that the nation, while doing its job of national defense "intelligently and without hysteria," also prepare for "grave economic dangers" forthcoming from the present war.

After the period of defense spending passes, "surely as night follows day," there must come the final accounting," he said last night at the tenth anniversary dinner of the $5,000,000 Maurice and Laura Falk Foundation, which supports scientific investigations of economic problems by research organizations.

"There is grave danger in the years ahead," he said. "Superimposed upon domestic problems will come those incident to the readjustment of the world economy in connection with the post-war settlement—problems fraught with the greatest danger to America and its economic interests."

He said that in the nation, legislation and "the political philosophy of recent years" has "restricted the essential development" of economy and brought about "a burden of continuous unemployment, increasing indebtedness, higher taxes, curbed productivity, higher prices, a reduced standard of living."

"Let us hope," he said, "that the domestic political economic abuses, the penalties and limitations which now beset the (nation's) economy, may come to an end or be corrected to an important degree in this, the year of 1940."

He said "we should be struggling for a constant expansion of productivity." "Our whole system of taxation must be rebuilt on the principle of stimulating enterprise." "We must protect the principles of competition to preserve our system of free enterprise." "Encouragement of small business units is an essential in an expanding economy."

Reconstruction of the United States economy on a "firm foundation" demands "the coordinated effort of the nation's most experienced leaders," he said, adding that this effort "must be patriotic—it cannot succeed as a partisan effort."

Sees Big Roosevelt Majority in Midwest

New York—(P)—Edward J. Flynn, Democratic national chairman, said today he had been assured by the director of the middle-western division of the national campaign that there could be "no question but that President Roosevelt will win the middle west by a surprising majority."

Senator Scott W. Lucas (D-Ill.), mid-western director, sent a report to national headquarters, Flynn said, in which he declared there was strong sentiment for "keeping Roosevelt on the job because of his inspiring conduct in the international situation and to safeguard social gains."

Begin Tryouts for Junior Class Play

Tryouts for parts in the junior class play will begin this afternoon at Appleton High school. The play will be directed by Miss Kathryn Fralish and will be presented for the public Friday evening, Nov. 29.

Nazi Bombs Force Reporter to Move Three Times Within Week

BY J. NORMAN LODGE

London—(P)—In a city under nightly bombing, every other day is moving day for me.

For the third time in exactly one week I am practically homeless again. This time a fire chased me out into the street. It looks like some kind of a record, but I'll gladly swap it for a used bus ticket.

A week ago I came to London from peaceful Dublin. That night one of Reichsmarshal Goering's boys routed me out of bed with high explosives that ruined my hotel.

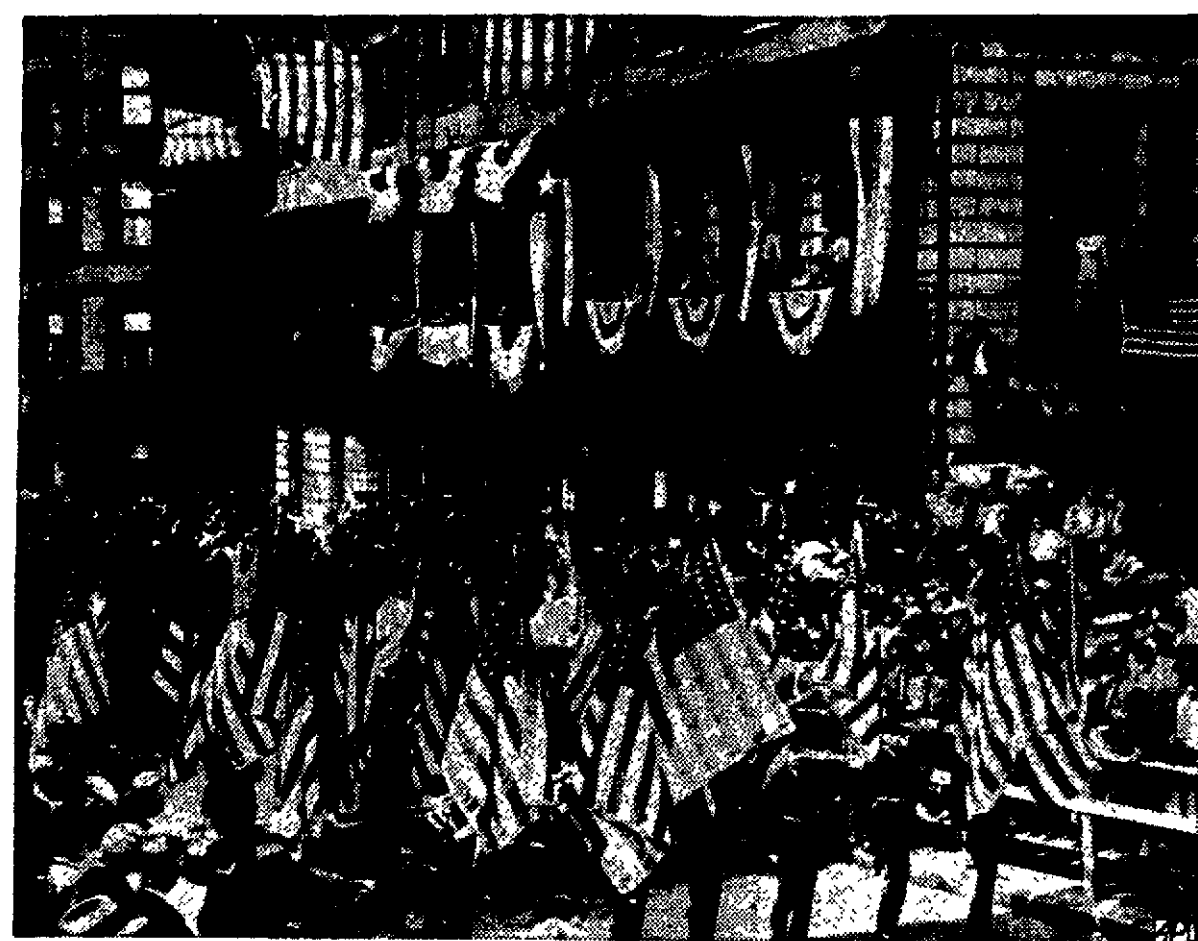

The next night I fooled them. I stayed in an underground restaurant. When I got back to my newly-chosen home I found a crater outside the door I got a new place.

Yesterday I was congratulating myself on being able to get some sleep, but I crowded too soon, for fire got my latest abode last night.

Maybe lightning doesn't strike twice in the same place, but this isn't lightning.

I've stood machine gun and artillery fire in Mexico and learned some things about bombs in the World War. Norway improved my military education, but all these were only the primer grades. This London stuff by comparison is like Harvard, Yale and Oxford rolled into one piece.

But there's no use in worrying. The medical journal observed recently that there is only one chance in 80,000 of an aerial bomb striking within 50 yards of any one person. And there's one consolation. My clothes have been so thoroughly smoked that everything I wear smells like genuine Harris Tweed.

MICHIGAN UNIT MARCHES IN ANNUAL LEGION PARADE—Against the backdrop of old houses on the slope of historic Beacon street in Boston, the massed colors of the Michigan units pass by in the 22nd annual convention parade of the American Legion. The parade wound its way along a 2 1/2-mile route to the cheers of a throng estimated at 2,000,000 persons.

Officers Study Health Board's Report on Pool

Objections of the state board of health in some technical details in the construction of the municipal swimming pool, including the use of sand around the pool, were studied by the board of public works yesterday.

L. F. Warrick, of the state health board, in a telephone conversation with Mayor Goodland this morning gave the city the signal to go ahead with construction this fall and the difficulties will be straightened out later.

Bids on the Hunter type pool will be opened by the board of public works Monday afternoon.

County Delegation Of Republicans to Hear Wendell Willkie

A large delegation of Outagamie county Republicans is expected to make the trip to Madison Friday to hear the Republican party's candidate for president, Wendell L. Willkie, speak.

Willkie will address his audience at the University of Wisconsin field house at 8 o'clock Friday night.

Dr. C. L. Kolb, chairman of the Republican party of Outagamie county, is in charge of transportation for the Appleton delegation.

War Situation Today French Colonial Troops at Dakar Still Continue Fight

London headquarters of General de Gaulle's "free French" forces said late today that "operations at Dakar are continuing." Earlier unconfirmed reports from Vichy said France's West African capital had surrendered.

The London report would indicate that the estimated 6,000 French colonial troops defending the strategic port were still holding out, presumably under heavy fire from British warships outside the harbor.

While the fate of Dakar remained obscure, 40 French warplanes from Morocco again bombed Britain's historic rock bastion of Gibraltar. Officially, the Vichy government said nothing had been heard from Dakar since 1:30 p. m. yesterday, when the African port underwent a fierce air raid by R.A.F. naval planes.

The city's radio station was shelled out of action and messages from French warships in the harbor provided the only communication with the outside world.

Casualties in yesterday morning's bombardment alone were listed at 185 killed, 393 wounded.

Under orders of the Vichy government of Premier Marshal Philippe Petain, who surrendered to German conquest, the little African colony, strategically "key to the south Atlantic," reportedly drove back six attempts to land troops from the siege ships.

De Gaulle and the British have explained that the attack on Dakar

Asks $1,500 for Injuries to Son

Opening arguments were heard today in the damage suit of E. A. Killoren of Appleton against H. L. Krueger, Forest Junction, and the Home Mutual Casualty company.

Killoren is asking $1,500 damages for injuries to his son, Eugene, and $2,000 for damages to his car. The suit is an outgrowth of an accident June 7, 1939, at the intersection of Highway 10 and a town road about a mile west of the junction of Highway 85 and 10 southeast of Appleton.

Cars driven by Eugene Killoren and Krueger crashed at this intersection, the accident resulting in the deaths of two young people of Appleton who were riding in the Killoren machine.

According to the complaint, Killoren was coming onto the highway from the south and Krueger was traveling west on Highway 10 when the collision occurred.

Members of the jury are John Harriman, Frank Kirk, George Werner, M. H. Smith, and H. J. Boettcher. Appleton; Mrs. Mildred Cleland, J. B. Delbridge, Madge Dooley, Mrs. Ida Raught, Kaukauna; Martin Hietpas, Little Chute; Margaret Kuehne, Seymour; John J. Walsh, route 2, Kaukauna.

4th Class Postmasters Will be in Limelight

Columbus, Ohio—(P)—Fourth class postmasters—the nation's lowliest—will command major attention at the 40th annual convention of the National Association of Postmasters opening today.

Frank J. Horak of Oconto, Wis., executive committeeman, reported that legislation to place postmasters in some 30,000 villages and crossroads communities on straight salaries or base their pay on postage sales would be among the principal discussion topics.

Remuneration of fourth class postmasters is based at present on amounts of postage cancelled in their offices (160 per cent), and Horak said that many postmasters padded cancellations, some even mailing letters to themselves.

Injuries Prove Fatal

Willkie Pledges Westerner for Cabinet Post

Says Secretary of Interior Will be Man Who Understands West

BY THEODORE F. KOOP

Aboard Willkie Train Enroute to Fargo, N. D.—(P)—Wendell L. Willkie, contending that a 1937 price statement by President Roosevelt had created a "disastrous" effect on world economics, gave the west a campaign pledge to appoint a westerner as secretary of the interior if he is elected.

The Republican presidential nominee, speaking on the "richest hill in the world" Butte, Mont., said last night: "In April 1937 when the (business) pickup was coming, the president made public announcement that the price of commodities was too high."

"The effect was very disastrous throughout the world, in my judgment. It was a factor in the economic decline of the democracies of Europe and thus contributed to the rise of Hitler."

A cut in copper prices resulted, Willkie said, bringing a wage cut for "every man who worked in the copper mines of this area."

There was applause from many in the audience seated beneath football floodlights.

"The very fact that the president had enough power in his hands that his mere statement could have caused such a rapid decline in the price of copper, I say to you, is very deleterious to our domestic economy."

"For instance, if Grover Cleveland had made some such remark, it would not have affected the price of copper, because he did not have enough power to do anything about it. But in the last seven years we have concentrated much power in Washington."

Willkie then told his hearers that he would appoint to the interior post in his cabinet, in event of his election "a man from the western country who grew up in and understands the atmosphere of the west."

Before his address, Willkie paraded through the Butte business district, which is built atop a section of copper mines.

Clark Chauncey Foster, Store Pioneer, Is Dead

New York—(P)—Clark Chauncey Foster, 87, a pioneer in the operation of 5- and 10-cent stores, died yesterday after a brief illness.

He was a founder of the Michigan and Illinois chain stores operated by the firm of Foster & Post, comprising himself and a brother-in-law, the late Nelson Post. The stores were absorbed by the F. W. Woolworth and Knox chain stores in 1907.

Foster was born in Fort Plain, N. Y., and opened his first store, a men's furnishings shop, in Baldwinsville, N. Y.

He moved to Saginaw, Mich., about 55 years ago, and with Post established the Foster & Post Bazaar. The company soon branched into the 5- and 10-cent store business and opened Michigan stores in Saginaw, Bay City, Flint, Battle Creek and Kalamazoo; Illinois stores in Rockford and Danville, and a Wisconsin store at Fond du Lac.

He moved to Portland, Ore., and entered the real estate and home construction business after retiring from the merchandizing business in 1907. Eight years ago he moved to Larchmont, a suburb of New York.

Electric Eye Soon Available in Homes

Pittsburgh—(P)—A domestic counterpart of the "electric eye," which will perform such duties as opening the dining room door for a housewife who is using both hands to carry dishes, will soon be available to the public, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company announced today.

The device will also operate burglar alarms, open a garage door automatically when a car approaches it, or switch on house lights automatically when someone enters after dark.

The apparatus, less than six inches square, has a small window on which a beam of light is focused. Once the light is broken by any object passing through it, the device operates a switch to start motors or ring alarms.

Fine Hand of Churchill Seen In Battle at Dakar

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York—(P)—There is much to be explained about the British-supported effort of General Charles de Gaulle, leader of Frenchmen still fighting the axis powers, to seize the strategic port of Dakar, capital of French West Africa, but it looks like a brilliant move to counter the new Berlin-Rome schemes to break England's hold on the Mediterranean.

Indeed, putting aside the ethics of the English attitude (with which we have no concern but which is hotly damned by the axis-ridden French government at Vichy, the scheme smacks of that quality of genius that many are accustomed to associate with British Premier Churchill—not only a statesman but a great naval and military strategist. The move is calculated, as I see it, to achieve several master strokes:

1. It would, if carried to success, prevent this most important naval and air base on the west coast of Africa from falling into the hands of the enemy.

2. It would enable Britain to maintain control of its South Atlantic communications.

3. It would help counter the threatened axis attack on Gibraltar from bases on Spanish soil—a matter of vital moment.

4. It might be of great assistance in operating against the Italians in Africa, this depending on the development of the De Gaulle-British project.

Beyond this it would seem that General de Gaulle hopes to establish a "free" French government over the whole vast area which is comprised in the African possessions in this part of Africa. That there is considerable support for such a move seems evident, but its extent remains to be seen. Should such a program be carried through it would, of course, be of mighty assistance to Britain in prosecution of the war.

However that may be, if the British succeed in getting control of Dakar, thereby preventing it from falling into axis hands, they will have averted a major disaster. It is impossible to say, of course, when this idea of seizing the key position of Dakar had its birth; it may have been some time ago.

I will hazard the guess, though, that it was rushed into operation because of the danger that Spain may cooperate with the axis and thus permit a serious assault on Gibraltar.

Threat Is Serious
This threat against Gibraltar cannot be overemphasized since it controls the narrow western entrance to the Mediterranean sea. Should the axis powers be able to knock Gibraltar out, both as a fortress and a naval base, it presumably would cut England off from entrance, or to exit from this sea at the western end.

Furthermore, if the axis also held Dakar, any British blockade of the entrance in the Atlantic would be endangered seriously and likely would permit Italian naval and commercial ships to reach the Atlantic once more. But with Dakar under English control, the British navy still could keep the Mediterranean bottled up by blockading the Atlantic side of the Strait of Gibraltar, even if the narrow passage itself was dominated by axis guns on Spanish soil overlooking Gibr and Ceuta in Spanish Morocco.

Whether British control of Dakar also would tend to restrain Spanish Generalissimo Franco from lending aid to the axis is problematical, but that is a possibility.

The status of the assault on Dakar remained obscure this morning but there were unconfirmed reports circulating in Vichy that the city had surrendered to the "free French" forces. In any event, in view of the vital necessity that Britain control this key position, it is hard to believe that the operation will be stopped until the Anglo-free French forces have achieved success. There can be small doubt that England can bring sufficient naval pressure to bear to accomplish this if she sees fit.

Mr. Willkie and Foreign Policy

At San Francisco on the shores of the Pacific Ocean Mr. Willkie expanded his foreign policy. In addition to reiterating his conviction that Great Britain is "our first line of defense and our only remaining friend" he took the position that in the Pacific "our best ends will be served by a free, strong and democratically progressive China." He is, therefore, in favor of sending more aid to Great Britain up "to the limits of prudence and effectiveness" and he believes we should give economic assistance to China and that we should "explore the acquisition and development of Pacific air bases for the protection of our interests in that ocean." His policy, in other words, is to support the British resistance to the Axis in Europe and the Chinese resistance to Japan in the Far East.

The interesting thing about this statement is that though such a two-ocean policy is undoubtedly in the making, the Administration has been moving cautiously on a line where Mr. Willkie is willing to move so boldly. There is no doubt that the President and Secretary Hull have always felt, as Mr. Willkie feels, that the resistance of China is the best check upon the menacing expansion of Japanese power in the Pacific. But since the outbreak of the European war they have avoided such a direct frontal challenge to the vital interests of Japan as Mr. Willkie advocated in his San Francisco speech. Whether they have been wisely prudent or unwisely timid in avoiding such a conflict with the vital interests of Japan is a debatable question. But the fact remains that on his intensely critical matter they have acted more cautiously than Mr. Willkie thinks the United States ought to act.

Constitutes Direct Challenge to Japan

It is necessary to bear in mind that Japan has staked everything on the effort to subjugate China and that a policy of giving "economic aid" to China, that is to say materials of war, is a direct challenge to Japan. In order to make it possible for economic assistance to reach the Chinese, the remaining highways into free China have to be kept open. These highways pass through French territory in Indo-China and through British territory in Burma. In order to cut off economic assistance to China, Japan is threatening to invade French Indo-China and has committed such hos-

Complete Hatten Park West Boundary Fence

New London — The entire west boundary fence of Hatten Recreation park has been completed to the Wolf river road and work is being rushed to complete the eastern fence from Beacon avenue to the road, a section 300 feet long. ## Stove Flares the heart of the practical issue country can determine whether Mr. Willkie's advice, which has such grave implications and such enormous consequences, is considered and responsible advice. They are questions which would not have arisen had Mr. Willkie followed the advice of his best friends, which was to co-operate with the President fully on foreign policy, had he resisted the temptation to campaign about foreign policy. For once Mr. Willkie made the decision to make foreign policy a partisan matter, the disconcerting problem of his own relation to his own party was bound to rise up and haunt him. Once he took the line that the President and the Democratic party did not know how properly to conduct foreign affairs, the country was bound to take a careful look at the competence of Mr. Willkie and the condition of the Republican party.

New London — A stove flaring up at the Alvin Ebert apartment at 215 Wisconsin street resulted in a call to the fire department at 8:45 Tuesday evening. No damage resulted.

Willkie Gains Favor In 'Independent' Vote

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J.—Wendell Willkie's most striking gains as compared with 1936 Republican strength have been made among the so-called "independent" voters, a group overwhelmingly for President Roosevelt in the last presidential election.

That fact stands out today at the conclusion of a nationwide fact-finding survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

Political leaders have long held a healthy respect for the "independent" vote, but not too much has been known heretofore about its size or voting habits. The Institute's survey makes three major points clear in the current campaign:

1. One voter in every five (20%) regards himself as an independent—without definite party allegiance. Easterners and Westerners, farmers and city people, these voters will hold the balance of power in November, since neither the Republicans nor the Democrats have enough "regular" party members to carry the election unaided.

2. Whereas the independents reached in the Institute survey were 76 per cent for President Roosevelt in the election of 1936, only 51 per cent with definite opinions at this stage of the race say they will vote for Roosevelt again. Mr. Willkie, with 49 per cent of the independent vote today, is 23 percentage points stronger with these voters than was Governor Landon.

3. Furthermore—a substantial number of independents (18%) say they have not yet decided how they will vote. "I'm still waiting to see what the candidates have to say," many of the remark. In state after state these independents who have yet to make up their minds may have a decisive effect next November.

Leaning to Willkie.
Today in six key northern and western states, accounting for 133 electoral votes, independent voters with opinions divide as follows:

Independents—Roosevelt Willkie
New York 49-51
Pennsylvania 42-58
Ohio 52-48
Illinois 46-54
Michigan 53-47
California 52-48

But 22 per cent are undecided in New York, 20 in Pennsylvania, 19 in Ohio, Illinois and Michigan, and 16 in California.

Wendell Willkie needs to win an even larger share of the independent vote than he holds today, the survey shows, for "regular" party Democrats considerably outnumber "regular" Republicans.

Voters in the survey were asked: "Do you consider yourself a Republican, Socialist, Independent or Democrat?" The replies were:

Democrat 44%
Republican 35
Independent 20
Socialist and all others 1

On the basis of the presidential vote in 1936, this means approximately 9,000,000 independent voters today—or about 12,000,000 when the total eligible population is considered.

Institute surveys show that the independent bloc is not a stationary one, however. Voters are constantly moving in and out of it—some toward the GOP, others toward the Democratic party. In the past two months, for instance, while the net percentage of independents has remained the same, the number of "regular" Democrats has increased and the number of "regular" Republicans has diminished. This suggests a slight drift of independents toward Roosevelt, with a comparable drift of "Republicans" into the independent category.

The net changes have been:

Calling Self	Aug. 4	Today
'Democrats'	41%	44%
'Republicans'	38	35
'Independents'	20	20
'Socialists' or other	1	1

The actual number of independents varies considerably from state to state and section to section. States with the largest proportions are Rhode Island (41%), Washington (33%) and Wisconsin (32%), while those with the lowest are South Carolina (2%), Mississippi (2%) and other Southern states.

London News Bureau Cut Off During Intense Aerial Raid

(Editor's note: Disruption of communications between the London and New York offices of the Associated Press during last night's air raid indicated the London office had been struck by a bomb but British censorship prevented cabling of details. However, Milo M. Thompson, acting chief of the London bureau, gives this account of the aftermath of the attack.)

BY MILO M. THOMPSON
London — (AP)—American readers may find that the story of bombing of London seems to repeat itself, especially since censorship prevents mentioning of place names. But there's no sameness on this side.

Every morning's trip to work is a journey of exploration. You never know what you'll find around the corner. In fact, you don't know from day to day just where you'll start your trek or where you'll work. German bombs last night left their marks over a wide area, and some of us had to assemble at unwanted places today.

After the heavy attack it was good to hear all our friends reporting present and inspiring to see how routine was rocked up by its tattered threads.

Work Goes On
Work must go on—and it did, and does.

A pall of smoke hung over parts of London this morning, but there were no such fires as those of a while back and those started seemed nearly dead.

But on one short trip I noted these things.

At a familiar corner, a group of little shops looked bleak behind the debris of their windows.

A storage warehouse showed somebody's furniture from a gaping tear in its side.

Between two business buildings, lay a great crater. One of the buildings had been afire and firemen were pumping out the water in a basement flooded by a broken main. (There were indications that the latter building was the Associated Press office on Tudor street, between Fleet street—London's newspaper row—and the Thames a few blocks from St. Paul's cathedral.)

At one place I had to swing my car wide to go around a gaping hole in the pavement of a residential street. At another I was held up by a concentration of ambulances which apparently were empty—being kept in readiness, no doubt.

This was just one small cross-section of a scene that must have been pretty widespread, judging from the night's sounds of bombs and anti-aircraft fire.

Doing Our Best Though Far Behind

In shiny manner the President said of the conscription law, "It is fair, it is certain, it is democratic, it is the will of the American people," to which he added that it was "debated in Congress without partisanship."

As a long time and consistent advocate of general military training the Post-Crescent feels there is nothing indecent in its speaking upon this long-delayed and essential matter of national policy since the Socialists, and semi-Socialists, such as Mr. Roosevelt, have at last been made to see the human value as well as national safety in conscription.

Only in passing should it be noted that the President was slow to follow Wendell Willkie in pointing to the necessity of the draft, but that, in customary Roosevelt style, he who told Congress on June 4th last there was nothing for it to do and it should go home, now informs the country that he is still leading to paths of safety.

Neither is there a word of truth in the claim that Congress handled the bill "without partisanship." Congress exhibited about as hysterical a display of Chicago ward politics as the public is likely to see for another year. And the Wisconsin delegation, headed by Senator LaFollette, ably seconded by Senator Wiley, and supported by its Representatives, had eyes for nothing but the after-war reaction, remembering 1920 and the hostility of the people toward everyone who tried to make America's foolish venture into that World War catastrophe as successful as possible under the circumstances.

We have the draft today, such as it is, because for years, ever since the Kellogg-Briand treaty abolishing war was broken, we have been virtually leaderless insofar as the true attributes of statesmanship are concerned. Instead of leaders, we have a few nurses, wet and dry, who croon to us, carry us about, sing lullabies, stick lollipops in our face and almost go into a nervous convulsion lest we walk because not treated softly enough.

Even in Wisconsin we have not had enough courage in public office to warn the people that flashes of lightning and black clouds presage an approaching storm. We were all very particular that our children at the University learn how to dance and mix a gin rickey but they mustn't be shown how to defend the country, not even when the country spends millions every year to educate them.

As the result of this lack of leadership we now have a stiff-jointed draft law full of errors and patched with makeshifts but it is our duty, and we must make the best of it we can. It will somehow serve the purpose. Its injustices and inadequacies must be overlooked.

Foreign Trade and the Future

Totalitarian success upon a world wide scale offers a number of advantages to America. And this because, until totalitarians friendships break up, trade agreements made by the dictators will be pointed at giving as great benefits to the tyrannies as possible.

But there is no sense in exaggerating this situation or in swallowing the president's claim that we will not be able to live in such a world as we have in the past.

America has dealt with many totalitarian states before.

Prior to the convulsions of World War No. 1 our trade relations with Germany were satisfactory just as they were with Russia, Bulgaria, Serbia and all the other autocratic states ruled in just as high handed a manner as any today and trying just as desperately to keep trade among themselves and for the glory of their own royal families.

The truth of it is that America has things to sell and goods to deliver in which no totalitarian state can fairly compete. The real danger on the horizon is in the possibility that a totalitarian state might by force of edict, threats, and fear of reprisals, compel other states to accept goods they did not want at prices they were unwilling to pay. But it must be manifest that such a state of affairs cannot be continued for long and that in order to continue it at all the lesser states must be virtual slaves of the greater one. None of this danger would be half so debasing to our intellects or demoralizing to our economy as to become again engulfed in a foreign war.

Shilling With the Shills

Perhaps we are introducing to our readers a new word when we present "shill."

But in big city politics, as well as in gambling, it is as old as loaded dice, marked cards and country suckers.

In the Chicago trial of a leading gambler, who was making a million a year net but paid taxes on only a quarter of that amount, several of these shills took the witness stand. They were distinguished looking personages. The description of the first one by a reporter covers the type. This shill was fairly gray of hair, blue of eye and benign of countenance. He dressed quietly and spoke softly. Occasionally, but not too often, a kindly smile flickered across his lips. All in all, he was the sort of a man, judged by appearances, one would like to own for a friend. But appearances are devilish things. For the shill was paid a regular salary by the gambling joint and provided with its money to sit in games and provide color, entertainment and a charming sort of atmosphere. He sympathized with the many losers and talked incessantly of the occasional winner.

It will be observed that the position of shill was highly desirable. The hours were not difficult because a man could sleep all day. The surroundings were plush and velvet. The drinks were ambrosia. The food was delectable.

But the evidence showed that no man could get a job as shill in Chicago without the recommendation of one of the Kelly-Nash machine and that when a shill lost his political touch, he lost his job and his salary.

And every shill is strong for humanity.

Fighting Infantile Paralysis

Dr. Allan Filek, state district health officer stationed at Green Bay, fighting the spread of infantile paralysis in northeastern Wisconsin, advises parents to keep their children at home for the present. He does not mean to keep them out of school or away from other gatherings, but rather to keep them out of other homes or away from situations where one youngster may accept a piece of candy from the grimy fist of another.

With about 30 cases and three deaths reported in the district, which includes Outagamie county, since July 7, it is to be hoped that parents will cooperate fully with the doctor in preventing the spread of this disease. Unfortunately the early symptoms are such that diagnosis is practically impossible until some form of paralysis has set in. This means that great care must be exercised to prevent children from eating or drinking from the same dishes with other children especially those who have "just a slight cold" or from mingling with any children while away from home on a visit, since even apparently healthy persons may be carriers of the disease.

Dr. Filek has warned especially against visits to northern counties but with seven cases in Outagamie county and two cases in Brown county the restrictions on visiting may well be much closer than that. The traditional childish practice of sharing sweets by the gimme-a-bite method can best be prevented by allowing no opportunity for it.

An Extra Cube of Sugar

To make more palatable the transfer of our cruisers to Britain in return for some thin leases the government has announced an agreement with Britain that the latter will not scuttle or surrender its fleet whether the water surrounding the British Isles become untenable or not, but in such contingency will send the same overseas for the defense of other parts of the empire.

This was precisely the agreement which France made with Britain with the additional clause that the French would not even conclude a separate peace without Britain's consent. Subsequently France found it to her advantage to violate this agreement. So she violated it. Even a democracy violates its agreements.

During World War No. 1 Austria-Hungary had this same sort of agreement with Germany. So did Bulgaria. So did Turkey. But when each wearied of the bloody struggle and the larder grew bare and children cried in the streets a separate peace was made without regard to the promise solemnly entered in black and white, toasted in good champagne and sealed with firm handclaps and kisses on both cheeks.

We have always thought that Britain was a splendid fighter. But if she finds it advisable or essential to her welfare to surrender part of her fleet she will do so.

You'd hardly think that he could add one word to it; but we are very certain he will, now he's a dad!

For when a baby learns to stammer a few quaint words, who could forbear adopting them? They may lack grammar when they are grouped with childish care!

He wears a key that means great learning. But there is more for him to know. His heart will find with love and yearning small words he too said long ago!

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
Washington—How completely the Vichy government in France is the thumb of Germany has been illustrated by recent diplomatic intrigue over French Indo-China.

For several weeks a military mission from French Indo-China has been in Washington trying to buy airplanes and war materials from the United States to aid in staving off Japan. Headed by Colonel Jacomy, a tough officer in the French colonial army, the mission brought certified checks for $12,000,000 with which to buy supplies.

Colonel Jacomy reported that French Indo-China had 100,000 men under arms, wanted to be absolutely independent of Vichy, was ready to resist Japan, and wanted to set itself up as a separate Asiatic state.

Since Secretary Hull already has warned Japan against seizing Indo-China, and since its seizure would give Japan a vital stepping-stone to the Dutch East Indies and Singapore, Washington presumably should have given Colonel Jacomy a warm reception.

However, he made the mistake of reporting first to his own embassy. And retiring Ambassador St. Quentin timidly cabled his government in Vichy asking for instructions. Whereupon Vichy dropped word to the nazis as to what was going on. And the nazis frowned. (Germany, of course, is working hand-in-glove with Japan, wants no opposition to the conquest of French Indo-China.)

From that point on, Colonel Jacomy got little cooperation from the French embassy. And without that cooperation he was unable at first, to see anyone very important at the state department. So for three weeks he sat in Washington with $12,000,000 to spend, with Japan sending ultimatums to Indo-China, with Secretary Hull warning Japan, and with the navy intensely worried over the Pacific.

Finally dynamic Sumner Welles, under secretary of state, heard of the situation and got busy. He gave assurances that after French Indo-China had decided on a definite policy of either resistance or surrender to Japan, the United States would act. Naturally no arms could be sold Indo-China if there was danger of surrender, with the arms falling into German or Japanese hands.

But, if Indo-China does decide to set up a separate state, Colonel Jacomy was assured that his government could buy arms in this country.

ANTI-BRITISH AMBASSADOR?

New French Ambassador Henri-Haye dropped in at a Washington movie theatre the other day to see a newsreel of himself being received upon his arrival.

His excellency seemed quite pleased and intrigued at the picture. Then the newsreel switched to a shot of pro-British General de Gaulle, who has set up a provisional "free" government in London and is attempting to rally Frenchmen in all parts of the world.

"Pout," sputtered the ambassador, waving his hand in disgust.

BATTLE NOTES

DEMOS: National Chairman Ed Flynn has quietly put his foot down against any campaign speaking by Mrs. Roosevelt. The First Lady has made no attempt to go on the stump, but certain inner circles strongly urged it. However, Flynn is vigorously opposed, contends that Mrs. Roosevelt can be a lot more effective by not engaging directly in the contest.

REPS: The following advertisement appeared in the want-ad section of a Washington daily: "Clubwomen wanted to organize Wilkie Clubs and distribute Wilkie emblems. 20 per cent commission. Room XXX, XXX N. St. N. W."

ACADEMIC: Dr. Endicott Peabody, 83-year-old founder and head-master for half a century of famed Groton preparatory school, which Roosevelt attended, is taking new cracks at the third term. An attempt by an Indian to draw a hostile blast from him brought this letter:

"I am entirely confident that Mr. Roosevelt neither wants to be dictator nor contemplates taking steps toward that position. He is in my judgment a thoroughly loyal American with all that implies. I have no fear of trouble coming from a third term. The fact that it is unprecedented means nothing. There would be no progress if we required a precedent every step."

SECRET BRITISH WEAPON

Britain's new secret anti-aircraft weapon, which is described as neither "gun, ray, nor balloon," is the most ingenious defense instrument the war has yet devised, according to military reports received here.

It consists of a shell which when fired by an anti-aircraft gun, explodes at a desired level and releases a new kind of gas. This gas has the same density as air and does not dissipate. It holds together and constitutes a sort of invisible balloon. The gas is harmless—except when it explodes, and then it possesses tremendous destructive power.

Explosion is by ignition. An airplane engine roaring through one of these gas masses ignites it and causes an explosion which tears the plane to pieces. That is the way the British are reported to be using it.

LABOR AND DEFENSE

Communities seeking new defense industries might find a valuable lesson in what nearly befell the town of Gadsden, Ala.

The army decided to build a shell plant here. But when this reached labor officials, they entered vehement protests. Reason was Gadsden's long and harsh anti-union record.

Among laborites, Gadsden is known as one of the "toughest" anti-union cities in the country. Several years ago, when Sherman Dalrymple, head of the CIO Rubber Workers Union, headed a drive to organize the workers in the rubber factories there, he was beaten and ordered to leave.

And only a few months ago, when he arrived to address a big union rally, he was informed that the hall, previously engaged, had just been canceled.

Backed by telegrams and petitions from both AFL and CIO sources, Defense Commissioner Sidney Hillman and his labor advisory committee assailed the army's plan to locate the shell plant in Gadsden. They insisted that it be built somewhere else.

The army admitted the validity of the attack, but contended it was strategically necessary to locate the plant in Gadsden because of the availability of raw materials.

In order not to obstruct vital defense production the labor chiefs finally withdrew their objections, but only after obtaining explicit assurances that the labor records of communities would be carefully considered in locating future defense industries.

A Bystander In Washington

Editor's Note—While Jack Stinson, who writes the "Bystander in Washington" is on vacation, the space usually devoted to his column has been made available to the major political parties for a pro-and-con presentation of an agreed list of political subjects.

This is the Democratic view of the current political campaign. The Republican view was presented Monday.

The following article probably is the last public statement written by the late speaker of the House of Representatives. It was prepared shortly before he went on September 10 to Baltimore, where he was seized with a fatal illness.

BY WILLIAM B. BANKHEAD

Late Speaker of the House of Representatives
Washington—First allow me to say that I am a firm believer in the wisdom of government by political parties. As a life-long Democrat, I have always voted for my party nominees—national, state and local—and Roosevelt is the nominee of my party for President.

I realize, however, that there are millions of Americans who are classed as "independents" upon whom party ties hang loosely or not at all, and who will probably play a decisive part in the coming election.

And there are many sound reasons why I support Roosevelt, in addition to my sense of party loyalty.

The legislative program enacted by a Democratic Congress very largely by reason of President Roosevelt's recommendations and leadership, is the best possible proof of his wholehearted espousal of that very essence of Jeffersonian Democracy, "equal rights to all men and special privileges to none."

All informed citizens are familiar with such legislative enactments. Many of them have been deeply offensive to great groups of men and corporations who had become inured to the enjoyment without restraint of "special privileges" granted them during the many years of prior Republican administrations. Great as has been the clamor against such legislation as the Holding Company Act, the Stock Exchange Act, the Wagner Act, Wage and Hour Act and many others, it is singularly insignificant that Mr. Wilkie, the Republican nominee, endorses them all. They were so overwhelmingly right in principle that neither he nor his party dared to recommend their repeal.

Exactly the same situation exists with reference to the Democratic farm program. With all the terrific antagonism and criticism of that program by the opposition party, and especially upon the part of Republican members of Congress, who bitterly opposed many of its essential features, especially the appropriations for parity payments, how in the name of common sense can the Republican leaders expect the farmers of the country to repudiate the party whose policies have aided them over the worst agricultural catastrophe in our history and which policies the Republican candidate and his party now endorse?

They have not yet forgotten the miserable fumbling of their problems by the Hoover administration. All we ask is that the American farmer just think back to those evil days.

I support Roosevelt on his foreign policy. He has demonstrated his devotion to peace and to universal brotherhood for all people everywhere. He has uttered time and again his loathing and abomination of war as an instrumentality of settlement of national antagonisms.

He has been one American who has had the foresight to anticipate exactly what is happening in the world today and to warn our fellow citizens against its sinister implications as they affect our national interest. Moreover, he has been a leader who has had the courage to urge adequate national defense to protect the sovereignty of our democratic institutions against assault from any power or combination of powers.

He is urging the Congress to hasten these measures of defense before it is too late, although he is fully aware that his forthright appeal may be a costly political venture. And that, when his reelection to the Presidency is at stake, is a pretty good pattern of a man. He has never equivocated or side-stepped on any problem affecting our national security.

I am for Roosevelt because in these days of tremendous peril to our land and institutions he is undoubtedly the best equipped man in the country by experience and knowledge of all essential factors to guide and preserve the destiny of the Republic and its people.

This is no time to experiment with a novice in affairs of government, even though he may be a good businessman.

Mr. Hoover and Mr. Chamberlain could qualify in that category.

10 YEARS AGO

Division chairmen and captains of teams working in the Y. M. C. A. membership drive which was to begin Oct. 6 were to meet that night at the association building to select team members and discuss the campaign.

The advantages and disadvantages of chain stores were to be discussed by high school debaters in the Fox river valley forensics contests that winter.

Final plans for a 2-story 16-apartment house with garages to be constructed by the Doty Apartment company, Neenah, under the direction of F. S. Durham, were rapidly being completed.

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—That agitation for the establishment of a new state court to handle appeals from state government administrative boards and commissions will be renewed before the 1941 legislative session is generally expected here, and such agitation will have an extra effect because of the fact that the congestion of Dane county circuit court calendars is worse than ever.

Wyngaard

Prominent members of the Wisconsin bar, and many leaders in the state government, have long felt that a special court of appeals was needed to handle cases arising out of the rulings of more than a dozen big capital commissions. Thus far, however, the law has provided for appeals to the circuit courts of the state, and has specified the Dane county circuit court for most cases.

The local circuit embraces Dane and Sauk counties, and although there are two branches, presided over by Judges August Hoppmann and Alvin Reis, respectively, Madison is also a legal center, with the result that the courts have plenty of work aside from state commission appeals. However, state appeals with the growth in the scope of state government have steadily increased in number. A further complicating factor arises out of the disqualification of Judge Reis from many of the cases because before he took the bench he was counsel for the state public service commission, biggest of the capital commissions.

Impatience with the tardiness of the local courts is becoming more apparent. Recently it was revealed that an important, precedent-making utility commission order was appealed last January, but will not be heard in court until January of next year, at the very earliest.

THOMSON AGAIN

Write down Vernon C. Thomson of Richland Center as almost a sure bet for reelection as speaker of the Wisconsin assembly.

Thomson is in the peculiar position of being elected without opposition in his home county, traditionally a bulwark of Republican strength. Neither the Democrats or the Progressives put up candidates against him in the primary election.

LOOMIS OPINION

Although there may be two interpretations of the Robinson vote in the Republican primary last week against Governor Heil, to Orland S. Loomis, Progressive candidate for governor, there is only one way of looking at it.

"From what I have heard in talking with friends, including Republicans throughout the state," he writes, "I am satisfied that the vote for Robinson was an honest protest vote and that it can be transmitted to my benefit."

Loomis' friends report that he will plunge into the campaign immediately, cognizant that the Progressives' only chance of victory, with Senator LaFollette absent from the campaign stump, lies in hard and unremitting campaign labor.

A. G. Brusewitz, and his men finished work for that season.

The non-commissioned officers of Company G and all the mounted orderlies were to take up the study of map reading and map problems that night under the direction of Sergeant Charles Green.

Dedication week for the Y. M. C. A. had been set for Oct. 11 to 18. It was to coincide with the first annual membership campaign.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

BEAUTY OF YOUTH

In a preceding talk we described the function of the sebaceous (skin oil), which is to keep the skin soft, smooth, pliable and warm and to protect it against irritants. Incidentally the skin oil, secreted by two or three million sebaceous or oil glands under the skin of the entire body surface except the soles and palms, beautifies the skin. It keeps what would otherwise be a dull or sallow complexion rosy and clear, just as a bit of oil brightens and brings out the color of a piece of furniture.

Other differences, of course, distinguish the bright, clear youthful and beautiful complexion from the dull, gray or sallow appearance of the old skin, such as wrinkles, looseness or sagging lines, but the primary difference is in the supply of skin oil. By the same token the main purpose and practically the only actual effect achieved by the application of cosmetics is to remove sebum or skin oil when there is an excess of it or to substitute something for it when there is insufficient sebaceous gland secretion.

Cold cream freshly made according to the formula given in the Pharmacopoeia—by freshly made I mean the batch should be prepared in quantity sufficient to last a month—is one of the most satisfactory substitutes for natural skin oil for an old skin.

Many women keep their skin and complexion in excellent condition by the daily use of a minimum of this home made Skin Oil. Heat moderately for three hours in double boiler four ounces of sesame oil with twenty grains of powdered benzoin. Then let cool and add twenty drops of rectified spirit (pure alcohol, dehydrated alcohol or absolute alcohol) or 190 proof alcohol, stir well, strain through silk.

Sesame oil (also called teal or til oil) does not clog the skin as some other oils do. In applying this Skin Oil, it is always more satisfactory to apply it frequently and in minimum quantity—only a drop or two at a time—than to apply it only once daily in larger quantity. Remember, it is merely a fair substitute for the natural sebum which is secreted constantly but in minimum quantity in the normal individual.

Others with old, dry and dull or sallow skin prefer cold cream prepared thus:

Pare into fine shavings one ounce of spermaceti and one ounce of white wax (beeswax bleached), melt them together with moderate heat. Add five ounces of expressed oil of almond (sweet almond oil). Dissolve 20 grains (about one-third teaspoonful of sodium borate (borax) in 11 ounces (three tablespoonfuls) of stronger rose water, and add this to the other mixture. Then stir rapidly or beat with egg beater or with heavy spoon until the mixture becomes uniformly soft and creamy.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Safe Bathing

Is it dangerous to go in bathing when the water is beginning to get cold? I mean for girls in their teens, and especially at times in the month. (Mrs. P. S. R.)

Answer—So far as the temperature of the water is concerned, or the temperature of the air, it is immaterial—the bathing or swimming is beneficial, never harmful or dangerous, if the girl enjoys it.

Dipsomania

What should be done for a woman 30 years of age who has developed such a craving for liquor that she commits the most grievous crimes against her husband and children in order to get liquor? (Mrs. M. A. C.)

Answer—She should be committed to an institution for treatment —either as a volunteer patient or by order of a court. For the young persons now in training for such a denouncement I have a booklet "Dipsomania"—for copy send ten cents coin and stamped envelope bearing your address.

How Are You Breathing?

Three years ago I couldn't pass a life insurance test. Today I have a four-inch chest expansion. (T. K. W.)

Answer—I rejected a young man with five-inch chest expansion because he had tuberculosis. Better quit fooling and learn how to breathe. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for pamphlet "Belly Breathing."

Shiocton Fire Department Is One of County's Real Veterans

(This is one of a number of articles describing the fire fighting equipment and personnel in the towns, villages and cities of this area. They are designed to acquaint readers with the types of fire fighting apparatuses and systems in vogue in this area. Another article will appear in the near future.)

Organized in 1905 the Shiocton fire department is one of the oldest in this vicinity.

Eleven years ago the department acquired its 350-gallon per minute pumper truck, according to Delbert Schwandt, chief for the last six years. Water is drawn from the Wolf river, which runs through the village, and from cisterns.

Twenty-four volunteers constitute the force. On receipt of a telephone call, a siren and bell call the volunteers to the truck, housed in a garage owned by the village. The village board sets the department budget and controls its activities. In addition to answering village calls, which Schwandt said averaged about six a year, the department goes to fires in the townships of Bovina and Mayne, for which its expenses are paid.

The yearly cost of operation is about $300. In addition to chemical equipment the truck has about 1200 feet of hose. Its severest test came when the Becker block partly burned in 1930, with damages estimated at $3,500.

13-Year-Old Girl Gets Her Hunting License

Waupaca—Thirteen-year-old Gloria Sommers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sommers purchased her hunting license Tuesday afternoon from County Clerk L. J. Steiger. ## Conference Held By Scout Leaders

Waupaca — A scout leader's conference at Twin Lakes over the weekend was attended by a large group of scouts from this city. The meeting opened Saturday evening with a supper served in the mess hall at 6:30. This was followed by an evening session in charge of George Nevitt, Oshkosh, chairman of the conference, and Fred Krade-well, commissioner of Mascoutin district. Among the talks on the evening program was one by Roy Holly, Sr., Waupaca, who spoke on "Story Telling in the Troop."

Following breakfast Sunday morning the Catholic men went to Waupaca to church services, while others remained in camp where Mr. Holly was in charge of religious services. Leaders discussed budget, and other problems during the day, concluding with "Planning for the National Emergency" by Harry H. Hertz, Oshkosh, scout executive. Others who attended from this city were Robert Holly, Jr., Roger McLean and Kenneth Peterson of Troop 38; Donald Jensen, Robert Weeden, Donovan Bier of Troop 34; Clarence Nelson, Colby, who is visiting in the city, also attended the conference taking with him a display of Indian bead work which he has been collecting.

Visits Parents

Dale — Miss Helen Bradley of Chicago is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bradley.

Mrs. Anna Altman of the Bronx, N. Y., is visiting Mrs. Bertha Beckman and other relatives.

Charles Borgwardt of Dale has been elected president of the junior class at New London High school.

Mrs. William Witt was taken to the Borchardt hospital at New London, Monday, for treatment.

Public Assistance Cases in Decline In Second Quarter

Madison — The state welfare department noted Tuesday a reduction of 115 per cent in the volume of public assistance cases in Wisconsin during the second quarter of 1940, attributing the decrease to improved business conditions and seasonal factors.

During June 136,609 family units received help from local, state and federal governments through general relief, work relief, farm aid and social security programs, compared with 154,339 during March, the department said.

While the decrease was 17,730 cases it still was below the spring reductions of the last four or five years.

"The present outlook for public assistance, however, is more encouraging than in any previous year," the department reported.

"The high rate of industrial production is expected to continue or even advance during the balance of the year. The expansion of the military forces might also tend to decrease the public assistance base." After bees stormed Calitzdrop, South Africa, and established headquarters in the church tower, housewives throughout the town were unable to leave anything sweet unprotected for the buzzers would steal it.

Perfect Attendance

Nine pupils of the Cedar Dell school were perfect in attendance during the first month of school, according to Mrs. Charles Kostezak, teacher. They are Margaret Gough, Patricia Basch, Arthur Howard, Thomas Gough, Archie Hehman, Joyce Howard, David Thoma, Ida Mae Hehman and Donna Thoma.

Funeral Rites Held For Alden Dutton, 59

Waupaca—Funeral services for Alden Dutton, 59, superintendent of waterworks, who died unexpectedly Sunday morning, were conducted at the Holly Funeral Home at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon by the Rev. Edward Langdon of the First Methodist church. Burial was in Lakeside cemetery.

Born in the town of Black Wolf, the son of Albert Dutton, he has spent his entire life in this county. He was about his duties in the pumping station Saturday when he apparently had a cerebral hemorrhage for he was found semi-conscious on the floor by Alderman Thomas Davidson. He was removed to the Waupaca City hospital where he remained until his death a few hours later.

Survivors are three daughters, Irene, Elaine and Audrey, and a brother, Byron Dutton, Minneapolis.

At the south shore anchorage a number of small boats were swamped and smashed against pilings. Giant waves dashing against the break-water and lighthouse at the harbor entrance hurled sheets of water 60 feet into the air.

No Expense For Annual Bridge Test

BY ELY CULBERTSON

One more reminder that the 1940 national self-rating bridge examination starts next Monday, Sept. 30. As announced yesterday and the day before, this exam will be conducted absolutely free of charge for the benefit and, I hope, entertainment of the readers of this column.

Each week day, for five weeks, I shall ask one or two questions on bidding or play, and exactly one week later publish the official answers in this column. Thus, readers will be able to "rate themselves" merely by writing down their answers, keeping them for one week, then comparing them with the official answers. Each examinee starts with the automatic score of 1,000 points. A wrong answer will be deducted a stated number of points which must be deducted from the 1,000. Some questions ("tough" ones) will carry credits, to be added back to the net total. Thus, "par" on the whole exam will be 1,000, but, by earning all possible credits, a contestant will be able to make a better than par score.

Examinees who want me to do their "rating" for them should write down their answers each day, keep them until the end of the week, then mail them in one envelope to Ely Culbertson, care of this paper. Each week's envelope must be postmarked before 5 p. m. on the Sunday at the week's end. To those contestants who do this and who come out with a score entitling them to master, expert, or advanced player ranking, I will send a signed certificate, appropriate to each rank. This, of course, will also be entirely free of charge.

There is only one thing I simply cannot do, and that is discuss by mail any of the official answers. When the exam is over I will explain each answer as fully as possible in this column. I may even publicly argue some controversial points, but I cannot do this individually.

Very few players would double on South's bid. I fear, yet this is the proper bid. South cannot be sure of making a game. He lacks support for his partner's bid, has no very good suit of his own, and is naturally afraid of no trump with only one stopper in diamonds. Moreover, he knows that if he happens to hit a very long diamond suit in East's hand, and the contract is made, no great catastrophe has occurred, since two of a minor, doubled, is only 80 points. And as a final criterion, penalty doubles being cooperative, North always can take it out if his hand is unsuited to a diamond defense.

The spade nine was opened and North rattled off three rounds before shifting to the low heart. East went up with the king. South won the ace and returned a heart. North's queen won. After two rounds of clubs, North was back on lead and led the fourth spade. South ruffed with the queen and later the jack of trumps had to be conceded to North. In all, the defenders took nine tricks, for 1,100 point penalty.

My Neighbor Says—

To slice figs, dates and prunes for cooking, cut them with scissors dipped frequently in warm water. This helps avoid stickiness and makes even-edged pieces. For fruit puddings it often is advisable to cover fruit with warm water so it will mix better with the other ingredients.

Beets, carrots, cabbage, potatoes and turnips should be stored in a cool, moist place. Onions require a storage that is cool and dry, while squashes need to be kept warm and dry.

Apple stuffing is just the thing for roast duck. Add a cup of coarsely chopped apples to your regular stuffing recipe and include two extra tablespoons of butter to season the apples. Prunes added to bread stuffing is a good recipe for geese.

Beauty and You

KEEPS SPINE LIMBER—Gale storm keeps her spine limber in this manner. She slowly raises both legs from the floor and then slowly separates them widely.

You are inspired to refashion your figure, to make it more beautiful than it is, and to carry it proudly in flattering pose. Today, you begin this figure beautifying by learning how to strengthen your spine. It is estimated that eighty-seven per cent of American women have weak spines! Likely as not you are in this group.

One cannot walk in good posture and with ease unless one's spine is strong and supple. Not strong and rigid. But fortunately for us, the same exercises which strengthen the spine also make it supple.

Practice the following group of exercises ten or fifteen minutes each day for the next two weeks and you will become acquainted with each vertebra—and each vertebra will do your bidding. You may follow this routine with any exercises you are doing currently for reducing or toning.

Exercise 1—Lying on the floor, clasp hands behind the neck. Keep legs and knees together, unbent, and raise them slowly in the air until they are pointing directly at the ceiling. Lower them slowly. Repeat five times.

Exercise 2—After relaxing, stretch out again and tuck your toes under a heavy weight (such as a radiator). Stretch arms up overhead. Raise your trunk to a sitting position, bend forward and touch your toes (if you can). This exercise should not be done more than three times a day the first week.

Exercise 3—Now stand up with feet rather wide apart, arms extended with hands clasped above head. Bend the trunk forward with a swing, allowing your arms to swing forward and down and as far back between the legs as they will go. Return to original position. Relax. Repeat three times each day the first week and increase up to ten.

Exercise 4—After a couple moments of relaxation, lie on your stomach and extend your arms and legs stretch. Relax and reach as far as you can, and push your feet down as far as possible. Relax. Now bend knees and point toes toward your shoulders. Reach back and grasp both ankles. Keep head and chest up and rock back and forth on your stomach.

Exercise 5—Put an ordinary straight chair against the wall. The chair should not be too low. Now lie on the floor flat on your back, with hand crossed on the chest, and heels placed upon the seat of the chair. Raise the torso from the floor, using the shoulders as pushers, and force the soles of your feet to go flat on the chair. Your first day, this exercise should be repeated ten times; as you progress increase the exercise to thirty times a day.

They are doing themselves a wrong because they are keeping their children from appreciating them and being grateful to them. For it is one thing to know that Higher and higher the school budgets grow but there is no indication that the children get more out of the schools. And that ought to be the standard of measure for the authorities responsible for the maintenance and administration of the schools. Does each dollar help in making the children more intelligent, better fitted for their responsibilities of citizenship?

Buildings are essential. They must be stoutly built, and simple. They need plenty of light from the sun, plenty of fresh air, heat in winter and shade in the summer. The equipment needs to be simple but adequate for the needs of teaching and learning. Costs here can be pared down. We are building palaces that exhaust the funds and may be leaving too little to pay teachers' salaries.

Pay Dividends

The quality of the teachers is what makes the school for the children. Good teachers, gifted by nature and trained in the colleges and universities, must be found and well paid. It is the teacher, not the impressive building, not the elaborate equipment that is essential. Given the good teacher, costs can be cut all along the line.

The good teacher needs little supervision. Leadership is all she asks. She needs only the simplest of materials. She is stimulating ideas, directing tastes, fostering skills, and as these require more mind than material she gets along with the least possible expense. She does not need much help from truant officers because her pupils want to get to her classroom as often as possible and stay as long as she will let them. Repairs are reduced to the minimum because children interested in their own affairs do not wreck equipment. Any city or town can afford to pay for the good teacher because she more than pays her way.

Yet, whenever costs are to be cut it is to the teachers' salaries the budget-cutting gentlemen turn first. The place where they can least afford reduction of quality is in the teaching staff yet that is always where reduction begins. A disturbed distressed teacher does not give her pupils what they need for growth and it is with the children's growth that the community, through its school authorities, should be concerned.

Cut Out the Unessentials

This is too often overlooked. Teachers are released, appointed, retired; jobs are created, abolished, increased—not with the children's need in mind but with the personalities involved to the fore. If the schools of this land were managed for the children and for no other reason they would cost less and do more for their pupils. Fewer kids would be tied to them and their load would be accordingly lighter. Some time, when your school costs are bothering the authorities, sit down with the lists of activities and the personnel of your school. List the classroom teachers and study their schedules. Then list the activities that have been tied to the school, the people who hold the jobs and their salaries. Balance the classroom costs against these others. You will learn something about your school's school costs unless your town is different from all the other towns in the country. Now set aside your teachers' schedules. Raise them if you can, and do the cutting on the unessentials—unessentials for the children whose school this is supposed to be.

Let Children Take Hand In Affairs of Household

BY DOROTHY DIX

Parental love is never so sublime and so idiotic as when fathers and mothers sacrifice their lives in trying to protect their children from the hardships they are forced by circumstances to endure. It is sublime because it is humanity's greatest expression of altruism, and it is idiotic because it defeats its own end and harms those whom it was designed to help. It is easy to see how those who have suffered want to save their children from pain. Easy to understand why the man who had no advantages of education himself starves to send his son to a swanky college. Easy to see why the father who has toiled since childhood, with no luxuries, no vacations, makes play boys and girls of his children. Easy to see why the woman who has never had a pretty dress in her life goes in debt for finery for her daughters. Easy to see why the mother who has always been a household drudge herself will not let her girls spoil their enameled nails by putting their hands in dish water. So we have the spectacle daily presented to us of the sons of poor fathers leading through college and riding around in sport cars that their old fathers are proud of and wearing patched shoes and clothes that are shiny at the seams; and of girls who lie on couches and read novels while their mothers are toiling in the kitchen, and who are fussy about the way that Mother does up their laundry.

When we see these selfish, lazy, dissatisfied, ungrateful children—after all the Poormen can never give their youngsters all that a Croesus has—we are filled with contempt for them, and wonder why that big, hulking Jones boy doesn't get a job and lift some of the family burden off his father's tired, bent shoulders; and why the Smith girl, who has to belong to athletic clubs in order to get exercise, doesn't use some of her muscles by pinch-hitting for her mother over the wash tub.

Not All Children's Fault

But, in reality, it is not the children's fault. It is the parents who are to blame because they have brought their girls and boys up in a false world, where they have hidden from them all of their cares and worries. They have given them the best of everything.

They had what the other children had—fancy sweaters, skates, bicycles and party clothes—no matter how shabby Mother and Father went. They had the white meat of the chicken, while Mom and Pop gnawed the back and the neck.

Time and again we have all heard worn and harassed men and women, whose nerves were fretted to fiddle strings trying to make ends meet, say that they didn't want to darken their children's lives with their own troubles and anxieties, so they never told them anything about being pressed for money, or overdue bills, or that Father's salary had been cut, or that the doctor had warned Mother that her heart was weak and that she must take things easier.

Now the parents who do this pat themselves on the back and think how noble and self-sacrificing they are, but, in reality, they are doing both themselves and the children a great wrong.

They are doing themselves a wrong because they are keeping their children from appreciating them and being grateful to them. For it is one thing to know that

Case Records of a Psychologist

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Imitation is one of the greatest aids to education. Set a good example before your first child, and he'll probably pass it along to the second. Thus one child educates another. In fact, we have too long ignored the importance of this mutual educational process which is at work among children. The "only" child misses much of it, at least when he isn't in school. Give him a brother or sister so he can pass your teaching down the line. Notice how George is unofficially tutoring Judy in English vocabulary.

CASE R-181: Judy, aged 6, is our only daughter.

"Boy, that made me mad," she stated emphatically at the dinner table, referring to some school episode.

"Wha-a-a-t!," exclaimed George, aged 10.

"I mean 'angry,'" she hastily corrected herself.

A little later that evening she again used the word "mad" and George called her to task about it. She showed no resentment but quickly substituted the correct word.

Children Teach Children

Parents of "only" children can scarcely imagine how much valuable training their youngsters miss by not having brothers and sisters. From the viewpoint of practical psychology, it is inefficient to have but one child. In a large family, for example, we can put forth special efforts with the firstborn and then he will pass along our teaching in a large degree.

FAY OWN HOTEL BILL

Usually the groom's family pay their own hotel bill when they are not invited to stay with the family or friends of the bride. But it would be entirely proper, as well as courteous, for the mother of the bride to write a note saying that she is looking forward with great pleasure to meeting them personally, and telling them she expects them to be her guests at the hotel. This is in answer to a bride-to-be who tells me:

"I have worked these several years in the home town of my fiancé. His family have been wonderful to me. Every weekend they have invited me to their house, and they have been nice to me in dozens of other ways.

"My own home, where the wedding is taking place, is quite a distance from here. My family lives in cramped quarters, making it impossible for me to invite the groom's mother and father and sister to our house. I have no relatives either who could be expected to invite them. In view of everything his people have done for me, do you think it would be permissible for my family to take care of their accommodations at the hotel, and let me, would we tell them about it beforehand? May I just tell them, or should mother write the other mother a note? And should their accommodations include a room for the groom too?"

As already said, it would be proper for your parents to ask the groom's parents to be their guests, but the groom (or his family for him) is expected to pay for his own and his ushers' accommodations—that is, if your relatives or intimate friends can not put them up.

How Far Courtesy?

Dear Mrs. Post: If a guest should make a mistake and drink out of her finger bowl (I am really just using this as an example), shouldn't the hostess do the same thing to avoid making the guest feel terrible?

Answer: It is hard to believe that this could happen outside of a slapstick comedy script. But if it should happen, the only thing the hostess could do would be to avoid using her own finger bowl, and hope that others at table will happen not to use their finger bowls, either.

The Morning Wedding Collation

Dear Mrs. Post: If the wedding collation after a ceremony is very are motivated to art. In similar manner, you can motivate them toward music or medicine, engineering or law, business or mechanics.

Answer: Yes! The name explains itself as the breaking of the night's fast. Nothing is indicated to show what its menu should be. You can, if you want to, call it your wedding collation, if you like it better, and particularly if you are going to serve punch and sandwiches instead of coffee and rolls as for early breakfast.

Casual Slaughters

By Virginia Hanson

YESTERDAY: Kay drives Jeff back to jail. She learns from Jeff that Sandra may have married him thinking his worthless property had silver on it. Back in her room, Kay looks for the shorthand notebook. It has vanished again.

Chapter 39

WHAT SAFE PLACE? I shuffled through the papers on top of the table. I opened the table drawer. I even delved into the wastebasket. But it wasn't there; it wasn't anywhere in the two rooms or in the small bathroom.

I gave up the search, finally. Jeff must have taken it after all. I felt a flash of resentment. He hadn't trusted me, even though I knew what the notebook might contain.

But did I? Too late I realized that there might have been more that Sandra could have told, information more damaging than the bit of scandal about Mimi and Jeff. Jeff needn't have told me anything he was afraid Sandra had put in that notebook!

I'd been a fool to believe him, to let it get out of my hands. What had he done with it—hidden it, destroyed it? There had been plenty of time to do either on his way to the garage. I felt sure he no longer had it when I delivered him at the hospital. It was too large to be concealed in a pocket, and he had not been carrying anything.

Was there any use trying to find it? Was there anyone to whom I could appeal for help? Gerald? I felt again that sinking of my heart the unwilling realization that Gerald was an impostor.

Felicia? The chaplain? But I would have to tell them that Jeff had been here, and was reluctant to do that. Perhaps he had not destroyed the notebook; he might have hidden it in the car. The garage was locked and the key in my bag, but I shrank from going out there alone in the dark. If the notebook was there, it was safe until morning. Morning, I told myself, would be time enough.

I got my wardrobe suitcase from the closet and packed my things, putting my papers all together in a compartment which served very well for the purpose. The rejected manuscript, still unopened, went in with them. Then I emptied the closet and the drawers of the mahogany chest, took a look around the bathroom and sitting room for forgotten articles, closed my typewriter in its traveling case, and prepared to leave. At the door, however, I turned back on an unexplained impulse and dragged the wardrobe suitcase as far as the sitting room. But it was too heavy for me, so I abandoned it there, locked both the suitcase and the typewriter and put the keys in my bag. Then I turned out the lights, went out and shut the door.

There was a light in Felicia's sitting room, but she was in bed, snoring a little. Remembering not to be too quiet, I prepared for bed, but she did not stir. And when presently I turned off the light and stretched out on the vacant bed her soft little snore was still at work.

Normally that snore would not have bothered me, but tonight I was overwrought. The instant I relaxed and was about to drift into sleep, unwelcome thoughts would swarm around me like mosquitoes. There were mosquitoes, too, in the flesh—their own and mine. And there was that softly persistent work. I seemed to me suddenly that Sandra was in the room with me, trying to tell me something. I began to shake with a chill that was not so much fright as the unbearable excitement of knowing that I was on the verge of a revelation. This was something that concerned me. I was as sure of it as if I had seen her standing there, pointing at me. When there was no one else, he had turned to me, even though I knew it was Julia's friend. Wasn't it plausible, then, that surrounded by strangers, she had caught her secret with me? She had trusted me with it—she could not do that—but she could leave me some clue to it. If I had the wit to recognize the clue—

I settled myself with another cigarette, let the magazine slip to the floor, and went over everything I could remember concerning Sandra since she had come to my room Sunday night.

There was the shorthand notebook, of course. That leaped to the attention. But in no sense could it be considered a safe place. Many people can read shorthand. Besides, it was too obvious. If it had been that important she would never have left it lying about.

A safe-deposit box? Not here, I was fairly sure of that. And the record she had made must be a recent one. There was no bank nearer than the next town, and to the best of my belief she had not been off the post since

Eventually I resigned myself to staying awake. I doubled my pillow against the head of the bed and sat up, staring at the gray shape of a window, wishing it would begin to grow lighter, wishing I had a cigarette but was afraid to get one for fear the smell of the smoke would disturb Felicia. I thought once of going into the sitting room, closing the door between; but that reminded me too vividly of the night before—of Sandra meeting death, alone, in my sitting room.

I felt the roots of my hair tingle with elemental fear. For the first time I thought of that snore as a comforting reminder that I was not alone.

Then I began to hear little things, small sounds such as are always audible in a sleeping house, but which tonight my disordered imagination magnified into evidence that evil was creeping on stealthily feet through the corridors of the building.

Over the heavy thudding of my heart I heard boards creak under the slow weight of those feet, heard the little stirrings of secret errands, the whisper of pages as if someone were leafing rapidly through a magazine. My thoughts went back with mounting horror to the picture of Sandra, sitting dutifully quiet while I worked, turning the pages of a magazine until I was ready to scream at the relentless regularity of the repeated sound. My heart hammering painfully, I pictured her sitting there now, turning the pages waiting—waiting for what? What had she left undone?

Then, so distinct that I knew I had not imagined it, loud in the quiet night, I heard the click of a door latch.

That sound woke me to a healthier fear. The click of the corridor door!

Almost relieved at the thought of a tangible menace, I crept out of bed and tiptoed to the open door of the sitting room, where I stopped for an instant to listen. There was no further sound. Presently, emboldened by the continued quiet, I reached a hand into the room and switched on the light.

There was no one there. I stood in the doorway for a moment, getting my nerve back and feeling foolish. Behind me Felicia still slept. Well, at least I could have a cigarette.

I crossed over and turned the key in the corridor door, reflecting that it was a little late for the precaution found my pocketbook, which contained the remains of a pack of cigarettes, and lit up. Then I pushed the door to the bedroom nearly shut, selected a magazine from a stack on the table, and settled down to read.

But not for long. I could not keep my mind on the magazine. Thoughts of my own kept nagging me—thoughts of Mimi and Colonel Pennant, of Julia and Jeff and Sandra. Sandra, who had "written down what she knew about several people and put it in a safe place." Not just what she knew about Mimi and Jeff. Several people.

Reducing it to simple terms, Sandra was a blackmail. She had blackmailed Jeff into marrying her. She had tried to blackmail him into giving her the Ozark property, which she believed to be valuable. A logical question formed in my mind. Had she been blackmailing someone else?

The answer brought me to my feet. It was so obvious that I wondered why I had not seen it before. She had been blackmailing the murderer!

Unbearable Excitement

Skyscraper Is Safest Place During Attack

Steel-Framed U. S. Buildings Resist Bombs in Air Raids

New York — (AP) — The safest place in an air-raid is within a steel-framed skyscraper.

This prediction and evidence to back it comes from building authorities in New York city. It applies to a type of building common in American cities but mostly lacking in Europe, the "articulated" or steel cage structure which American engineers invented.

Two European examples are cited in News and Opinion, publication of the Building Trades Employers Association of the City of New York. Both are of American pattern.

In Madrid, the 20-story Telephone exchange, of the International Telegraph and Telephone company, withstood constant heavy shelling and bombing for 18 months. It was hit many times by bombs and large-caliber shells, says V. G. Iden of the American Institute of Steel Construction, and not even seriously damaged.

In Rotterdam, News and Opinion says, damage to ordinary five story business buildings was terrific, but singularly a 12-story new steel frame apartment building escaped.

Difference in Construction
Engineers explain this. The old type of building, which includes all Europe's historic structures, is known as the monolith. This means that the walls support the entire weight of roof, floors and all the contents thereof.

The articulated American skyscraper is an endless steel skeleton, that is, every part of the frame is united by steel rivets, or by welding, to every adjoining part. This results in what engineers call distribution of load.

For example, the masonry covering, that is the walls, are supported separately floor by floor, on the steel frame. Bomb demolition of a lower wall will not necessarily bring down upper sections. Each part of the building is capable in a measure of acting alone.

The steel has another advantage. It is not only a tough material but elastic. It resists stresses in all directions. It resists not only being blown down, but equally a force which tries to blow it up or in any other direction.

Lastly this steel frame is capable of stretching. The stretch is not likely to be perceptible to the eye, but it is nevertheless real, and enables the frame to readjust to new loading conditions. Loading conditions is a technical term for the forces which try to topple a building.

In such a skyscraper the safest place at present would be the

Denies Convicts Made Political Road Signs

Chester, Ill. — (AP) — Warren Joseph Montgomery of the southern Illinois penitentiary said today an investigation had shown there was no foundation to a charge that political signs were being manufactured by prisoners at the institution.

"Any charge that this prison has been manufacturing political road signs is entirely unfounded," the warden declared.

However, Montgomery said, the investigation had disclosed that "one inmate had painted some banners which, I understand, were displayed on some guards' automobiles."

"This action, of course, was stopped because no inmate is supposed to do any such work for (prison) employees," he added.

"The bill of sale was produced to show that the sign cloth used for the banners was purchased outside the institution. No state materials were used."

Montgomery said he did not know what wording appeared on the banners because he had never seen one, but he intimated they were Roosevelt-Hershey signs.

Must've Been Loud

Tulsa, Okla. — (AP) — A fellow complained to Desk Sergeant Jack Billingsley that two youths were violating the anti-noise ordinance by tooting at automobile horns. "And, believe it or not, the complainant is hard of hearing," says Sergeant Billingsley.

lower floors. For the tops are not safe. The roof, say the construction men, is the Achilles heel of skyscrapers. Roofs were built before air defense became necessary.

Need Heavier Roofs
But they can be made safe by heavier construction.

"If we need 50,000 planes to protect ourselves," News and Opinion observes, "we certainly need heavier roofs."

There is another reason for heavier roofs. Army authorities, the building publication says, consider certain New York buildings to be ideal positions for anti-aircraft emplacements. They give an angle of view and fire impossible from many downtown streets and parks, with the additional advantage of 500 to 750 feet additional range.

Vulnerable important and famous American buildings, Mr. Iden says, are the White House, the national capitol building and the old treasury building. They are erected without the articulated steel inside.

In contrast, he thinks the more recently erected government buildings in Washington would be the last to be destroyed.

The person who takes refuge in a steel skyscraper should remember that there is a possibility of hits through windows. Bombs frequently fall on a slant.

The present bombs were developed in Europe for destroying Europe's strongest buildings, the monolith types. Bigger bombs apparently would have to be made to attack American skyscrapers.

Flying westward, were attacked by British fighters and ground batteries. A German plane fell in flames at Branksome. The pilot bailed out but was killed.

A Brighton correspondent reported that a Spitfire fighter chased a German bomber out to sea at noon today and a little later returned, doing a "victory roll."

Massed German bombers gave central London the worst plastering of the war last night. Some of the fires were still burning at noon today. For block after block one could not get away from the penetrating smell of smoke.

Bombs Fall On Street
Within a radius of 100 yards two bombs fell in a busy street and a third turned a three-story house into a skeleton. Incendiaries fired two furniture stores and a pair of smaller buildings.

Farther down the street a bomb ripped a bank wide open and damaged a score of small shops. Amid bomb craters and fires, other stores remained open for business. Cockney fruit and vegetable sellers were back on the damaged streets, picking their way through the tangle of fire hoses.

One woman vendor set up her stall on the edge of a 40-foot bomb crater, erected screens to protect herself and her wares from the hose spray and did a big business. A bomb, apparently aimed at a railway station, had landed outside a famous newspaper office. The ground floor offices were wrecked, but the paper came out as usual this morning. The front of the railway station merely was scarred.

Bomb Menaces 400 men
A bomb cratered the roadway in front of a hostel where 400 men were lodged. Some were killed, others injured. A hostel officer said the basement was quickly turned into a casualty center, where doctors and ambulance workers cared for the wounded.

The orchestra of an underground restaurant was playing "There'll Always be an England" when the place was shaken by a bomb-thud. Despite the havoc, there are still many streets in the main sections of London where not a wall is cracked, not a window broken.

Scarcely anyone took notice of the air-raid sirens when they sounded this morning. A young woman milk-seller wheeled her bicycle through the broken glass of one street and didn't even look up. The fury of the night bombardment reached its peak just before dawn in a finale to the worst of 18 consecutive nights of death and damage.

Only one woman glider pilot is listed with the U. S. Bureau of air commerce.

Six Young Men on Schooner Reopen Log of the Kellys

New York — (AP) — There was nothing unusual about it when Arthur H. Terry III of New York became master of his own ship at 22, for the blood of the Kellys of Winterport, Maine, is in his veins and the Winterport Kellys have been seafaring men for so far back that nobody can remember.

The first was an Irishman who deserted the King's Navy to be master of his own ship. For generations the family contributed to the history of Down East men and Down East ships; until, suddenly, there were no more Kellys.

Last of the line was Capt. T. L. Kelly, master of the Down East coaster Ethel F. Hawley, a three-master in the West Indies trade. He left no sons to follow him to sea when he died, and it seemed to be the end of the Kellys.

But blood had to tell. The captain had two daughters, and Arthur Terry is his grandson, a true throwback. The young man has puttered around boats since boyhood. He went to sea in the sailing ship Joseph Conrad, then, went out in steam on the South American run.

"I always wanted a schooner," he says. "I always wanted to work for myself. No matter how good a job you've got you aren't your own boss if you work for somebody else."

So he and five other young men formed a company and bought the schooner Philosopher. They put in 80-horsepower engines and a radio, and outfitted her for the South American trade. The Philosopher is of 67 gross tons, Maine-built in 1926.

Terry and his companions don't figure they're in for a lark. It's the life they've picked out for themselves.

More than 20,000,000 copies of Tolstoi's works have been printed in Russia.

Six Masked Men Invade Farmhouse

Racine — (AP) — Six men, masked and armed, invaded the farm home of Henry Rodenbeck last night and ransacked the house after tying up Rodenbeck, his three sisters, and a hired man.

Sheriff Miles A. Hulett said that the men asked for a still and alcohol, leading him to believe they were hijackers. If they had expected to raid a still, he added, they "got into the wrong house."

Rodenbeck was forced to open his empty safe. The gunmen disregarded $3 in the pockets of Hans Dahl, the hired hand, and fled without loot other than two guns.

Judge Duffy Quashes Legal Tender Action

Milwaukee — (AP) — Federal Judge F. Ryan Duffy today dismissed a suit attacking the validity of federal reserve notes as legal tender. The court, ruling in a suit brought by Fred W. Bentley, a mechanical engineer, held that the legality of the notes had been approved by congress and the United States Supreme Court.

Bentley, who asked that the First Wisconsin National bank give him "legal tender" for $3,400 of federal reserve notes it had issued to him, claimed that the federal reserve system legally could not be invested with power to issue money.

Home After 2-Month Stay In Wyoming

It was no dude ranch vacation that Miss Virginia Steffensen, Good Hope farm, Calumet road, had this summer, for during her 2-month stay at the 28 Ranch in Wyoming she rode hard, pulled cattle out of bogs, assisted in driving and handling 7,500 head of sheep and helped in the shipping of 50,000 pounds of wool to Boston, Mass. Miss Steffensen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Steffensen, returned this week from a visit with her uncle, C. W. Peeters, a rancher at Buffalo, and Mr. and Mrs. George Hesse who own the 28 Ranch, a sheep and cattle ranch covering 60,000 acres, partly in the Big Horn mountains.

The Hesses were among the first white ranchers in Wyoming, settling there when the west knew no fences or protection from Indians. The wool they shipped to Boston this year brought the highest price paid in Johnston county, Wyoming, 30 cents per pound.

Miss Steffensen also visited the HP Bat Ranch at Saddle Spring, Wyo., and saw rodeos at Sheridan and Buffalo and traveled through Yellowstone and Grand Teton National parks.

Mrs. Frank Knowlton, Elmhurst, Ill., left this morning after a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer O'Keefe, 507 S. Walnut street. Mrs. O'Keefe and Mrs. Knowlton spent the weekend at Sturgeon Bay visiting the Lawrence Iverson family, and when they returned brought with them Miss Mary Iverson, who left with Mrs. Knowlton today to enter the American Academy of Arts at Chicago. Mrs. Lawrence Iverson, the former Miss Charlotte Kinch of Appleton, is a sister of Mrs. Knowlton.

Miss Myrtle Rohm, assistant superintendent and instructor of nursing arts at Danbury hospital, Danbury, Conn., was called to Appleton Monday by the illness of her mother, Mrs. Robert Rohm, 1804 N. Alvin street. She came from New York to Chicago by plane.

Narrator Pleases Audience With Biblical Portraiture

A charming speaking voice and excellent stage presence helped Kathryn Turney Garten, Indianapolis, Ind., hold her audience of over 300 persons last night at First Methodist church when she presented an interpretative portrait of the Bible as presented in Ernest Sutherland Bates' book, "The Bible Designed to be Read as Living Literature." Her appearance in Appleton was sponsored by Appleton Business and Professional Women's club.

Mrs. Garten displayed the ability to modernize her Biblical material so that those of whom she speaks take on current interest. She referred to the Bible as a source book, a library of knowledge which the author and publishers decided to make more readable by giving continuity and bringing out its pattern and by publishing it with good binding and on attractive paper.

The reader said that life histories of the Biblical races were the concern of author Bates, and that he divided his material into books dealing with history and those that have to do with literature. She told vivid stories concerned with such Biblical leaders as Abraham and Sarah, Isaac and Rebecca, Joseph, Pharaoh, Moses, the Israelites, Saul, David and Solomon.

Mrs. Garten's portraiture went on to a consideration of the poetical, dramatic, fictional and biographical aspects of the Bible as taken up in the Bates book, and she concluded with a recounting of the most stirring biography of all, the birth, life and death of the greatest of all Biblical heroes, Jesus Christ.

Mrs. Garten was introduced by Dr. Harry C. Culver, pastor of First Methodist church. Following the program a reception was held in the church parlors for members and friends of the Appleton club as well as visitors from clubs at Kaukauna, New London, Neenah, Menasha and Green Bay.

Council to Ask For Opinion on 8-Ward Petitions

Conflicting Laws Prompt Request for Legal Clarification

Conflicting laws regulating changes in the ward system of a city prompted the city council last night to ask for an opinion from the attorney general on the legality of the petitions asking re-districting of the city into eight wards.

When the petitions were submitted to the council last Wednesday after the city clerk certified the number of signatures was sufficient, aldermen voted to study them at an informal meeting.

According to the plan described in the petitions, the backers, a "Better Government league," are seeking an 8-ward system with one alderman and one supervisor for each instead of the present 18-ward plan, adopted by the people in a referendum two years ago.

The conflicting laws are one which permits a change in a charter ordinance after it has been in effect for two years and another which prevents the council from re-districting the city more frequently than once in five years.

The council was reluctant to refer the proposed change to the voters for referendum in defiance of the law which limits re-districting to once in five years.

Solicitors for the 8-ward plan are W. C. Denstedt, J. A. Lonsdorf, J. Joslyn, Wilmer Saibelich, H. J. Leimer, C. A. Kaufmann and H. S. Fuzminger.

Japs Consider Pact With Axis

my faction ready to insist anew on an alliance with the axis, a project which the militarists almost forced on an unwilling civilian government last year, before the European war began. The alliance scheme failed then and its chief backers, notably Toshio Shiratori, ambassador to Rome, fell into eclipse.

But Shiratori found Shiratori once more a power as special adviser to Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka in a government committed to totalitarian policies and to all efforts to make the most of the unparalleled opportunity for expansion offered Japan by the collapse of European powers with Oriental empires.

Already Japanese troops are driving into French Indo-China, and a Japanese economic mission with broad powers is negotiating at Batavia on the future relations between Japan and the Netherlands East Indies, whose oil and rubber would go far toward making Japan self-sufficient.

In Berlin today official German sources professed ignorance of an impending Japanese-German-Italian alliance.

Willkie Statement Wins Flynn Ridicule

New York — (P) — Edward J. Flynn, Democratic national chairman, today ridiculed what he termed a "crude appeal" by Wendell L. Willkie in saying that "he came up the hard way."

"It is a crude appeal on Willkie's part to create an impression that does not actually exist," Flynn said at a press conference. "It is ridiculous to make an appeal which he in his heart knows is not true."

In a discussion which followed, Flynn said he would not say that President Roosevelt came up the hard way, except, he added with a smile, "he came up the hard way in politics."

Wallace Raps Willkie Pledge To U. S. Farmer

Says Candidate Can't Carry Out Promise If He Is Elected

Shenandoah, Iowa — (P) — Henry A. Wallace today attacked Wendell L. Willkie's pledge to the farmer as one he could not carry out if elected president.

The Democratic vice presidential nominee, in a prepared speech, recalled that the Republican presidential nominee said in Des Moines last August:

"If elected president, I will not take away any benefits gained by agriculture during the past few years."

Then Wallace added: "He might just as well have said, 'I will not, but just what my fellow Republicans in congress' . . . 'The truth is that the dominant elements in the Republican party have been against the farmer for the last 20 years and are against him today. There is no reason to believe they will change after Nov. 5.'"

Wallace charged that Willkie had failed to tell the farmers that the Republican party platform and his own pledge had been nullified only four days before his Des Moines speech by Republican representatives voting 106 to 38 against commodity loans.

"Agriculture should not and can not take a chance of a Republican administration in power," he said. "A Republican administration would sound the death knell of fair play for the farmer."

The former secretary of agriculture said that more than ever in the next few years farmers would need a strong agricultural program — one systematically administered and adequately financed.

Saying farmers had a big stake in Roosevelt's policy of fostering military and economic solidarity in the western hemisphere, he told his listeners the New World could not take a chance on economic appeasement of the dictators.

"If we fail to unite and are willing to trade with dictator nations on their terms, we shall be forced to make one economic concession after another and in the end we shall find we are no better off than Poland or Norway or Rumania."

lowed next week "by a concluding meeting of the leading men of Germany, Italy and Spain in south Germany."

As fresh squadrons of German warplanes left their continental bases for new raids on Britain, the German high command reported that "dawn to dusk" attacks yesterday had resulted in further damage on London and other places.

Railway facilities were destroyed in the area of Dover, Folkestone and Ashford, the communique said, and port facilities were hit at Hastings, Liverpool, Cardiff, Newcastle and Brighton, as well as the Woolston airplane factory at Southampton.

British planes dropped high explosive bombs in and around Berlin early this morning in their third successive night raid on the German capital, keeping the city's 4,000,000 residents in underground shelters for 2 hours and 48 minutes.

Authorities said there were "several" civilian casualties and again declared, as they have after previous British air attacks, that damage was slight and confined largely to homes.

Major General Fish Calls for Volunteers For 32nd Division

Milwaukee — (P) — Major General Irving A. Fish today sounded a call for enlistments in the 32nd division, Wisconsin-Michigan National Guard, to build the organization up to its full war strength.

General Fish said there were openings in the 32nd for 6,000 men between the ages of 18 and 44 years. The division recently was given orders to mobilize Oct. 16 for a year of training at Camp Beauregard, La.

"There are openings in all units," General Fish said. "The enlistment application should be made to captains of the division units and if any unit is over-enlisted, this will be equalized later. The enlistments will count in the conscription quotas for the state."

"Enlistment in the 32nd now means that Wisconsin and Michigan men go into the military service with their home town friends and associates. This means much in the service. The period between now and Oct. 16 may be the last time for some time that there will be opportunity of joining the 32nd division."

Kidnaper Facing California Trial

San Francisco — (P) — Federal officials announced intentions today of giving Wilhelm Jakob Mullenbroich to state authorities for prosecution as the kidnaper of Baby Marc de Tristan, Jr.

Meanwhile, the federal bureau of investigation, which kept the German alien uncommunicado, continued its check to see if he might have been the man who kidnapped Charles Mattson in Tacoma, Wash., the night of Dec. 27, 1936, and left his mutilated body in a snow patch near Everett, Wash. 15 days later.

William Mattson, brother of the Tacoma victim, was flown here with FBI agents to confront Mullenbroich, but whether he identified the man was undisclosed.

The kidnap-plot of the little Mattson boy faces a probable death sentence, Mullenbroich, if convicted in the De Tristan case under California law, can be sentenced only to life imprisonment unless it is proved he harmed his 2½-year-old victim. Federal authorities have revealed nothing so far to indicate any federal law was violated in the kidnaping.

Pegler Takes Another Swing At Candidate for Prosecutor

BY WESTBROOK PEGLEE

Chicago—I have never met a more authentic specimen of the labor skater who fattens on organized labor in the role of political patron than Oscar F. Nelson, a judge of the superior court of Cook county, who has the effrontery not only to sit in judgment on the fate and fortunes of other men but to present himself as a candidate for the office of public prosecutor.

Ordinarily the public outside Chicago would have no interest in a contest for the office of state's attorney here for which the judge is now a candidate. But in this case the circumstances compel wider attention, for organized labor in Chicago has been deviled and bled by racketeers of the criminal underworld as nowhere else in the country, and yet this judge, himself identified with evil interlopers, is campaigning as one who would "drive out all the undesirables who seek to fasten themselves upon labor organizations."

I call attention to the fact that I write not on hearsay but on information. I interviewed this judge for almost two hours in an office which he occupies in the suite of the law firm which still holds the account of the flat janitors' union, a subsidiary of the malodorous international union of building service employees.

He formerly was a partner in this firm, but claims that he has dissociated himself for the duration of his term on the bench. I hope he is more truthful in that statement than in other declarations which he made to me.

One statement I have already disposed of, that his firm got only a little more than $10,000 a year from the janitors during the 12-year period, from 1923 to 1935, when he represented these toilers officially.

The proposition that this relatively small union required even that much legal service, including service of its individual members, if the union and the members were reasonably well-behaved, I need not discuss. It is his proposition and I will leave it lay where Nelson flung it.

But, confronted the next day with the fact that this union regularly collected an assessment of $2 per member per quarter for legal services, Judge Nelson admitted that this had been so, that his firm got "part" of this kitty, amounting, "at times" to $30,000 a year, and that one year the firm's rakeoff was $42,000.

This judge has worked the union appeal for political advantage and financial profit for many years. He has been a vice president of the Chicago federation of labor for a quarter of a century and has exploited his connections in politics.

Then That Person Came Walking In

In the same interview Judge Nelson denied to me that his secretary had taken the minutes of the executive meeting in 1937, at which a mob of New York and Chicago hoodlums took over the presidency of the building service employees by electing to that office George Scalise—the white slaver and inveterate racketeer who recently was convicted of robbing the union treasury. He admitted that the minutes were taken by a young woman employed by the law firm, but said she was not his secretary any more and was not his secretary at the time she took the minutes. Yet twice in the course of conversation, this person entered the room where we were sitting and performed secretarial duties for him.

Judge Nelson also denied that he had served as counsel for the building service union and said he knew Scalise only slightly.

On Sept. 7 the Chicago Tribune quoted him as saying he never received a single fee from Scalise's union, which would suggest that he never represented the organization, and on Sept. 20, the Chicago Daily News said he flatly denied that he ever was connected with the building service employees.

By way of comment on the truth of his statements I now quote from a greeting from Judge Nelson published in the official ballyhoo journal of the Scalise racketeers in its first issue, Aug. 1, 1938, when he was on the bench.

"I hasten to extend my greetings, congratulations and good wishes to General President Scalise, to his fellow officers of the international union and to the new journal," Judge Nelson wrote.

And, again recalling his denial that he ever was counsel for the international note this closing sentence of his greeting:

"Because of the many years that I served as the attorney for the Building Service Employees' International union and the part I had

This from the man who says he would "drive out all the undesirables who seek to fasten themselves upon labor organizations."

Report Corn Borer Advancing Westward in State This Year

The European corn borer, which was found for the first time last year in Outagamie county, has advanced westward into four more counties, indicating that it threatens to become a serious menace to Wisconsin agriculture, the state department of agriculture reports in a bulletin received by County Agent J. F. Magnus.

During a summer survey just completed in eastern Wisconsin the corn borer was found for the first time in Portage, Waushara, Columbia and Walworth counties, making a total of 26 counties now infested with the pest, according to E. L. Chambers, plant industry division chief.

The heaviest infestations were found in Racine, Kenosha and Green Lake counties.

As yet the borer has caused virtually no commercial damage to corn or other crops in Wisconsin, Chambers says, but its spread to new counties increases the danger to the successful production of raw materials essential to dairying and sweet corn grown for canning purposes.

Other counties in which the corn borer has established itself are Milwaukee, Waukesha, Jefferson, Dodge, Washington, Ozaukee, Fond du Lac, Winnebago, Calumet, Door, Kewaunee, Brown, Outagamie, Waupaca, Shawano, Oconto, Marinette, Sheboygan and Manitowish.

Lime Available To County Farmers

Outagamie county farmers will be able to get lime to treat their sour soils without advancing any cash, according to provisions in the 1941 AAA program.

J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent, says that soil tests, made on county soils during the last two years, have shown that 30 per cent of the samples tested needed lime to get good catches and crops of the clovers and alfalfa.

The clovers or alfalfa are regarded by successful farmers, throughout the county, as basic crops in rotations which will build up or even maintain a profitable level of soil fertility. They have found that these legumes will not produce satisfactory yields unless the soil is well supplied with lime.

To do the most good, it is generally believed the liming material should be applied as far in advance of seeding as possible. In this way some of the smaller particles will be dissolved and ready to go to work neutralizing the acidity or to be taken in as food by the plants.

To enable farmers to get the much needed liming materials, provision has been made in the 1941 agricultural conservation program to supply this material in lieu of part of their 1941 payments.

Joseph E. Garvey, county AAA chairman, says that soil building credit for applications of lime under the recently announced 1941 conservation program is the same as prevailed in 1940. He suggests that applications for lime this fall be made early.

Barley Yield Is Heavy in State

The Wisconsin barley crop has made a good showing this year, according to a bulletin received from the state department of agriculture by County Agent J. F. Magnus. Nearly 24 million bushels of barley were harvested, a crop 5 per cent larger than the one raised last year.

Yields were particularly good and more than made up for the 15 per cent decrease in the acreage. The barley crop this year is nearly 12 per cent larger than the 10-year average production.

Reports of tame hay production continue to show that Wisconsin has the largest crop on record, more than seven million tons. The production of all tame hay is about a fourth larger than it was a year ago and nearly 56 per cent above average.

Flaxseed Production Shows Large Increase

Wisconsin's flaxseed production this year is expected to be the largest reported for any year since 1900, according to a crop reporting service bulletin received by J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agent.

Growing conditions have been more favorable to the crop than in 1939. The yield per acre is also larger this year. The increase in production, however, is chiefly because of a much larger acreage than harvested in 1939. Wisconsin's flaxseed crop is estimated at 175,000 bushels and is nearly 45 per cent above the 1939 production. The acreage this year is estimated at 14,000 acres and is 3,000 acres more than harvested last year.

Hong Kong, China, is increasing its purchases of American goods.

many plants will receive certificates of honor showing that all their patrons are cooperating in the association's voluntary dairy promotion program, according to a bulletin received by County Agent J. F. Magnus.

The payments, obtained through a deduction of a half cent per pound on butterfat delivered at cooperating plants in August, are now pouring into state headquarters of the W. D. I. A. here, according to Lee I. Yorkson, manager of the association. The deadline for receiving the payments is Oct. 15.

Farmers Take Steps to Cool Milk Properly

Cooling Tanks Built Through Cooperation Of Cooperative Plants

Steps to insure prompt cooling of milk have been taken by many Outagamie county farmers this season as part of the quality dairy program.

Already more than 65 concrete cooling tanks have been built on farms belonging to patrons of two large county milk plants. J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent, reports that 40 of the tanks were constructed by patrons of the Consolidated Badger Cooperative plant with another 25 being built by farmers delivering milk to the Kaukauna Cooperative dairy.

Under the plan followed by the Badger plant patrons, the plant has available three sets of tank forms and a concrete mixer. These forms are loaned to individual farmers as they are needed, together with the concrete mixer, the farmer furnishing a gasoline engine to run the machine. Elmer Knickie, plant fieldman, aids the farmer who provides his own gravel and cement and does the work of pouring the concrete.

In the Kaukauna plant arrangements are made for renting out the forms by the truck driver on his route.

Outagamie county was the first in the state to organize a county-wide quality milk improvement program.

Seek Aid to Prevent Shipping Fever Spread

With a few cases of hemorrhagic septicemia occurring in Wisconsin, the state department of agriculture is seeking the cooperation of cattle purchasers in preventing the disease from spreading, according to a bulletin received by County Agent J. F. Magnus.

In most instances the disease, commonly known as shipping fever, can be traced to cattle imported from public stockyards in other states, Dr. V. S. Larson, chief of the department's livestock sanitation division, points out.

Shipping fever is most prevalent at this time of the year. It has infected public stockyards and public sales pavilions and any cattle passing through these concentration points must be considered as exposed to the disease, Dr. Larson says.

Losses from the disease can be greatly reduced, he advises, by immunizing all cattle before they are shipped. If the cattle are vaccinated from 10 days to two weeks before being exposed to shipping fever, the results are very gratifying. Vaccination is of no avail, however, after the disease has established itself, he added.

Attitudes Change on Power Development by Government

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington.—We have come a long way since Roosevelt, before his first inauguration, announced his TVA dream.

The TVA experiment led to the longest and most bitter fight of the Roosevelt administration. Through that contest, Wendell Willkie, as the leader of the opposition, achieved the national fame that led to his nomination as the Republican candidate for president.

Although Willkie won his spurs fighting TVA and the extension of public power projects, it does not appear that he is trying to win the election on the same issue. On the contrary, the policy that Willkie outlined at Portland, Ore., dovetails with current public power developments.

Even before his election in 1932, Roosevelt stirred apprehension in a campaign speech at Portland, Ore., by outlining his dream of four great power developments—the St. Lawrence, the Tennessee valley, Boulder dam, then under construction, and the Columbia river projects at Bonneville and Grand Coulee. Roosevelt announced the yardstick theory and spoke for abundant cheap power. He said something that has almost been forgotten, namely, that he did not hold with those who advocate government ownership or government operation of all utilities, and that as a broad general rule, with certain exceptions, power development should be left to private capital.

But in action, he has stressed the exceptions rather than the rule and the exceptions, especially TVA, caused the fierce opposition led by Willkie. In his forgotten Portland address, Roosevelt said the power sites should be developed by government itself but that private capital should be given the first opportunity to transmit and distribute the power on the basis of the best service and the lowest rates possible.

In the Portland campaign speech Roosevelt gave private utilities a better break than Willkie gave them when he spoke in the same locality eight years later.

Willkie, speaking within a few miles of the giant Booneville power project, said that of course these projects should be completed and used for the public benefit. He said that the people of the localities concerned should decide whether the public power should be distributed by publicly owned or privately owned systems. That is more than Roosevelt said. Roosevelt gave first call to private utilities in the distribution systems.

Struggle Now In Field Of Self-Determination

In practice, the Roosevelt administration was to crowd private utilities harder than the Roosevelt campaign.

Forced Retirement Of Teachers Invalid, Circuit Judge Finds

Milwaukee — (AP) — Circuit Judge Roland J. Steinfeld Monday held unconstitutional the act passed by the 1939 legislature which required all school teachers outside Milwaukee to retire at the age of 65.

That provision, Judge Steinfeld declared was "arbitrary and discriminatory" in its violation of the rights of teachers who already had attained permanent tenure under the law adopted by the previous legislature.

Teachers who had not been given life tenure were not affected by the decision.

Modification of the permanent tenure law "would result in chaos," Judge Steinfeld held, "and instead of procuring security for teachers in their position, would place their status back in the uncertain realm which existed before the tenure law was enacted."

The court issued a writ of mandamus ordering the West Allis school board to reinstate Elsie Morrison, 65, who had been refused a new contract by the board at the end of the last school year.

Evangelical League Meets at Black Creek

Black Creek—Miss Bernice Blake was the leader and gave the prayer at the meeting Friday evening of the Evangelical League of the St. John Evangelical church. Miss Joyce Herman read the scripture lesson.

Miss Dorothy Ann Kluge and John Kluge, delegates to the Green Lake conference last month, gave their reports.

The annual fall supper of the Methodist church will be given Thursday evening in the sub-auditorium of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. George Beckman and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Thiel and son, Weyauwega, Mrs. Anna Altman, New York City, were dinner guests Thursday evening of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Gehrke.

Recreational Leader Goes to Milwaukee

Fremont — Orvil Smith, recreational leader in Fremont, went to Milwaukee Sunday to remain for ten days to attend the school of training for recreational leaders.

At St. Paul's Lutheran church Sunday morning, English services will be conducted at 9:15, a German service at 10:30 and services in English at 7:45 in the evening. Sunday school classes will be organized at a meeting at 9 o'clock next Sunday morning in the basement of St. Paul's Lutheran church.

Mr. and Mrs. Arlin W. Pitt have gone on a two weeks automobile trip to Boston, Mass. Mr. Pitt will attend the national American Legion convention.

Mr. and Mrs. William Otto and daughter Adeline, Oshkosh, were visitors Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Marquardt.

paid speech indicated and the private utilities put up resistance vastly more stubborn than Willkie now apparently would recommend. When the residents of Chattanooga voted to establish public distribution of TVA power, the Commonwealth and Southern subsidiary fought the bond proposal and although it carried by a good margin, resistance was continued in the courts.

Now Willkie, following in the direction of his vice-presidential running-mate, Senator McNary, has narrowed the struggle to the field of self-determination as to distribution systems.

McNary, in his campaign acceptance speech, practically wiped out power as an issue. He advocated wider harnessing of waterpower by government action. The government, he said, having made this power available, should "have an indisputable right to control its utilization and distribution." He apparently would make distribution entirely publicly controlled. McNary insisted upon fair compensation for private utilities that are taken over and he said significantly that "We now have a working precedent for such fair treatment in the recent acquisition by purchase of private companies by the Tennessee Valley authority."

This brings us a long way from the recent days when TVA was being fought every inch of the way and when the courts were being invoked to throttle the experiment. Slowly and through bitter controversy we have worked around to the general acceptance now of the idea that in a system of private enterprise there are some activities which can be carried on more effectively by government enterprise. It is the method of the middle way which Scandinavian democracies developed with such happy results—happy until Hitler interfered.

Communications Body Established Under U. S. Defense Program

Washington.—President Roosevelt created a defense communications board Tuesday to "coordinate the relationship of all branches of communications to the national defense."

A White House statement said that the board would have the duty of "charting the utilization and control of our communication systems in the best interests of national security."

"The board is basically a planning agency," the statement said, "without operating or procurement functions."

"The board will have no power to censor radio or other communications, or to take over any facilities."

Members will be the chairman of the federal communications commission, chief signal officer of the army, director of naval communications, and assistant secretaries of the state and treasury departments.

Johnson Has His Doubts About Civilian Pilot Training Plan

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON

Washington, D. C.—Five weeks ago I questioned the value and efficiency of the civilian pilot training program, which is a plan to train 50,000 pilots for military and naval service by farming the students out to civilian pilots in groups of from 10 to 40 to be trained at so much a head. I said that it was not properly supervised, was dangerous and unlikely to produce many military and naval pilots who would not have to start all over again in the primary training of the armed services.

Johnson

I wrote that after seeing the plan in process and talking with experienced and impartial training experts upon whose judgment I rely. From other such men, that column received endorsement but by some interested in that program I was told with various degrees of indignation that I did not know what I was talking about.

Wayne Parrish, editor of American aviation, has watched this development closely, has recently made a study of it and has not, as a recent gossip column implied, the remotest political interest. In an editorial in the September 15th issue, he goes a lot further than did my column and even hints at the very odorous condition which may result in a congressional investigation.

Assistant Secretary of Commerce Hinckley wangled a total appropriation of $37,000,000 to finance this program. It was presented as a defense move to train 50,000 pilots—perhaps for Mr. Roosevelt's 50,000 phantom planes.

The record is not clear as to whether congress was told that nothing in the plan commits any trainee to any kind of military service but Mr. Parrish reports that prospects are assured that there is no such obligation and told just to forget that part of it. Out of 77 graduates of the secondary course, 76 didn't seek military training.

No military or naval authority is very clearly on record, but privately neither branch believes that a satisfactory substitute for the service primary courses can be given in this haphazard fashion.

Those who doubted the wisdom of the transfer of the independent CAA to the political department of commerce, do not feel much encouraged by these developments nor by the increasing sabotage of the inspection service of the old CAA, which hung up so remarkable a record of air safety on the transport lines.

What Situation Needs Congressional Investigation

Veteran inspectors are being submerged, weeded out or resign in disgust to make places for less experienced men. The recent fatal airliner crash in Virginia was probably not a result of these changes, but they do not give one a feeling of comfort when viewed in connection with the mounting number of accidents and fatalities in this pilot training plan.

It is hard enough to understand how military and naval pilots can be trained by a slapped together hay crate organization of civilian pilots, but harder still to see how a safe and uniform course of instruction can be given in so many independent "schools" by instructors themselves of a wide variety of experience and training without an inspection service rating almost perfect efficiency. Many of the so-called "private flying specialists" who are "directing" this loose jointed organization for training military and naval pilots were examined and failed to qualify under the old inspection service as inspectors.

In this new "specialist" rating, they receive higher pay than experienced inspectors—$5,600 per year as compared with $3,200, $3,800 or $4,600. The latter figure being the highest rate in the old inspection service. This and similar policies are stripping that service of competent men.

Much worse faults of carelessness and money business have been reported but I have been unable to confirm them. What this situation needs is a congressional investigation. Maybe it will get it—but not until after the election.

Sunday except for the one time she had gone with me to the post office, and then she had not been out of my sight.

The post office. She had mailed two letters.

"To friends who knew Ivan," she had said.

I remembered those letters. Thin, one-page affairs. Sull—they might have included the few words necessary to incriminate someone—

And then I thought of the manuscript. Little things which had no meaning for me at the time they happened recurred to me now in a new light. Sandra asking to use my typewriter and staying alone in my room all that afternoon. Her determination that the manuscript should be finished and sent off that very day. The questions she had asked concerning its destination and the elude of its probable return if rejected. And the strange intensity with which she had watched me seal and stamp the envelope and hand it through the window to the postmaster.

What had the editor said?

With feverish fingers I extracted the letter once more from my bag and read it with new comprehension.

"Sounds like two stories mixed up—"

My housecoat was lying in the jumble of things in my overnight case. I crushed the letter back into my pocketbook, snatched up the robe and put it on. That manuscript, locked in my wardrobe case in the next room, would bear investigating.

A familiar chill gripped me as I turned the key to unlock the door to the corridor, but I gave myself no time to heed it. I clicked off the light in the sitting room, listened for a moment to Felicia's hardy slumber and gently, quietly turned the doorknob.

Yankees Jump Back Into Pennant Race

Defeat Nats Twice; Indians Lose to Browns

BY JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

The "long count" given Gene Tunney one famous night in Chicago has nothing on the long count the New York Yankees are getting these days.

Ever since July 4, the baseball experts have been counting over the four-times world champions. Some days they count them out and some days they count them in. This is one of the days for counting them in, because they have won six successive contests and the American league struggle is so tight that it would be possible by sundown tonight for Detroit and Cleveland to be tied again and the Yankees be in third place only one game behind.

They stand now:

	W.	L.	Pct.	Behind Play
Detroit	87	62	.584	5
Cleveland	86	64	.573	1 1/2
New York	84	64	.568	2 1/2

The Yankees whipped the Washington Senators twice yesterday, 6-5 and 9-4, while the Indians dropped a 7-2 decision to the St. Louis Browns and Detroit was kept idle because of rain.

Anything Possible

The Tigers must play a double-header with the Chicago White Sox today while their rivals play single games, making all sorts of situations possible. Chicago has downed Detroit in 13 out of 20 games previously this year.

The Yankees' chances for another championship still are remote, because they would have to win all their remaining games and Detroit would have to lose two in order to get as much as a tie. Yet the Yanks make their true believers feel they have a chance because they just won't quit fighting.

Dutch Leonard and the Senators had them staggering in the first game yesterday, two runs behind in the ninth inning, but they tied the score with two singles, a double and a walk, and in the tenth inning they punched over the deciding run on a walk, Joe Gordon's double and Red Rolfe's single.

They scored five runs in the third inning of the nightcap, three of them on a homer by Babe Dahlgren, and won with ease.

Cleveland was curbed by the sixth-inning hurling of Elden Auker and would have been shutout except for a couple of errors by Shortstop Johnny Berardino of the Browns. St. Louis raked three Cleveland hurriers for 14 hits.

Red Sox Beat Macks

The day's big hitting show, however, was at Philadelphia in the first game of a doubleheader in which the Boston Red Sox beat the A's 16-8. Boston made 23 hits, including six home runs, and the A's 15. Ted Williams and Manager Joe Cronin each hit two homers and Jimmie Fox, one of the Sox's major league career. In the sixth inning Williams, Fox and Cronin hit for the circuit in succession to tie the big league record.

In the second game Boston's Jack Wilson bested Bill Beckman 4-3 in a hurling duel with six-hit ball and the help of a three-run rally in the eighth.

The only game in the National league that escaped the rain was at Brooklyn, where the Dodgers noosed out the New York Giants 5-4 to clinch second place in the National league. Brooklyn lumped five runs into the fifth inning and withstood a four-run rebuttal in the eighth.

Lou Salica Regains Bantamweight Title

New York—(N)—Lou Salica, who held the world bantamweight championship five years ago but not for long enough to find out what it's worth, has the title back again. Whether it will prove an empty honor is another question.

Salica became champion in 1935 when he outpointed Sixto Escobar in a bout to settle a disputed title. He held the crown a few months then lost it back to the Puerto Rican. Escobar gave up the title last year, largely because he couldn't find any profitable opposition.

So last night Salica went into another of those fights to settle opposing title claims and again came out with the championship after outpointing George Pace, Cleveland Negro, over the 15-round route. Previously the National Boxing association had recognized Pace as champion and the New York commission had cast its vote for Salica.

Bucky Walters, Everybody's Find, Keeps Rolling Along

BY JOHN FRYE

Cincinnati—(P)—As time goes on and the tall, likable guy named William Bucky Walters continues winning ball games for the Cincinnati Reds, more and more people claim to be the first to discover that as a two-bit third baseman he was one whole of a pitcher.

Most authorities point to Jimmy Wilson, Red catcher-coach who was Bucky's manager on the struggling Phillies in those days, but every day some one pops up with "I seen 'im first."

Be that as it may, and maybe Bucky couldn't say for sure himself, the half million heirs of the founders of Losantville on the banks of the Ohio are willing to be grateful to anyone.

For Cincinnati, nee Losantville, has watched him leave that sinker ball for more than two years now and it still looks good. It goes in there just above the knees, ducks its head as the bat comes around, and

Women Will Form Afternoon League At 'Y' Thursday

The Y. M. C. A. afternoon women's Rainbow bowling league, will meet at the Y at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon to organize for the season. All ladies interested in bowling in an afternoon league have been requested to be present as team names will be chosen, officers elected, a suitable day and hour determined and other matters pertinent to the organization will be discussed.

The league was originally organized in 1939 for the purpose of creating and stimulating interest among the women of Appleton in afternoon bowling. It was created primarily for beginners and those who had had a limited amount of experience in league or organized competition. The league was successful and attained its objectives is evidenced by the fact that last year the Rainbow league was the only afternoon ladies league in Appleton. This year there are close to 30 teams which will be engaged in afternoon league competition.

The Rainbow league again will cater to beginners and those ladies who have had a very limited amount of organized bowling league competition.

Thus far a group of twenty-three ladies have evidenced a desire to participate in the Rainbow league. The group includes Mrs. George Hoffer, Mrs. Wall, Mrs. Norman Ehle, Mrs. Frans Larson, Mrs. Dewey Zwicker, Mrs. Ray Risch, Mrs. Alex Sauter, Mrs. Albert Salt, Mrs. Herman Getchow, Mrs. Fred Kienitz, Mrs. George Kenitzer, Mrs. Joe Froelich, Mrs. Wilber Sabers, Mrs. Dick Day, Mrs. Walter Rehr, Mrs. Louis Fleck, Mrs. A. D. Wilkinson, Mrs. Horace Davis, Jr., Mrs. John Horton, Mrs. John Fowle, Mrs. Harry Lewis, Mrs. Myrl Davis and Mrs. Bert Browning. It is possible that the Appleton Women's club will enter one or two teams. Any other women interested in joining are invited to attend the meeting or get in touch with Ray H. Risch, physical director at the Y.

Racine Youth No. 1 U. S. Baton Twirler

Racine—(N)—Number one baton twirler of the United States—that's Bill Allen, Racine Horlick High school student. Allen won his title in competition with adults at the national convention of the American Legion in Boston yesterday.

There's another futile roller to the infield.

Bucky is a family man whose off hours are spent teaching his young son what to do with a throwing arm. Winters he hunts ducks with Jimmy Wilson in those east coast marshes.

Last year, Bucky's first full season with the Reds, he gave them their major push to the World Series by winning 27 games and losing only 12. He and Paul Derringer were personally responsible for 52—or more than half—of the Red's victories.

The going has been tougher this season. He didn't turn in his 20th victory until mid-September. He had 9 defeats up to that time.

Well, the experts said last fall that Bucky and Paul wouldn't repeat their brother act and they didn't Paul was still trying for No. 20 in mid-September. He had lost an even dozen up to then.

But consider this—

But there are some factors to be considered. In the first place, the Reds of 1940 are the second "hitless wonders." They've been batting around .260 and have never had more than two regulars checking in above .300 at any one time.

Last year, either Bucky or Paul could on occasion allow four or five runs and still win. This year they've had to keep the opposition to a minimum of one or two runs and many a time a shutout has been the only salvation.

Another point: the Reds' pitching strength is invested in more men. Last year Bucky and Paul were the wheel horses. Gene Thompson was good but a rookie. Johnny Vander Meer was a bust. Whitey Moore was yes and no, and Lee Grissom was Lee Grissom.

Today Thompson takes his regular turn, Jim Turner is dependable. Moore is beginning to declare dividends, and Vandy, the double-no-hit hero of 1938, may be some help.

Comes Through

Then, of course, there's Joe Beggs, the farm-hand who was just surplus gold to the New York Yankees. Let anybody show the faintest symptom of needing help in comes Fireman Joe, with hook, ladder, and the dustiest fire-hose you ever saw.

If this sounds like palaver to cover up the fact that Bucky and Paul can't win 52 games again this year, look at the standings and learn for yourself that the Reds of 1940 are about a week ahead of their 1939 winning schedule. Two pitchers don't have to win 52 games if there's enough other talent around.

Chaffin Chatter

By Gordon H. McIntyre

Still talking about the Packers: Continue to watch pro games for the exploits of one George McAfee. He ran wild against the Packers Saturday but so did Osmanski a year ago. And last Sunday Osmanski was just another football player. McAfee will slow down after he's been rattled around a few times and that will come soon enough now that the pros have learned he's dangerous.

Incidentally, he already has been pegged as a weak player on pass defense.

The height of over-statement: One newspaper's report that the "infuriated" Packers . . . scored. . . . To our way of observing the Packers weren't mad at anyone about anything Sunday. . . . They were only going through the motions of playing football.

Byron Bowby of Appleton won the autographed football given away between the third and fourth periods.

Among the Chicago fans present was George "Brute" Trafton, once of the Bears, looking as big as ever but hardly as tough as he used to be when he was helping build up Bear-Packer rivalry years back. If Ray Bray, 224 pound Bear guard, doesn't get kicked around plenty before the season ends, he'll be lucky. He's inclined to be a trifle dirty and some one or two fellows will gang up on him one of these days.

McAfee was drawn by Philadelphia in the draft but went to the Bears when the latter gave the Eagles a couple players in exchange.

One of the Oshkosh civic associations is thinking about Class D ball for that city.

Appleton high grid hopes were jolted last Friday when Evan Pegel, a husky line candidate who played a bit last year, had his appendix removed.

Satchel Paige, famous Negro baseball pitcher, says Charlie Gehring, veteran Detroit second baseman is the hardest man he knows to pitch to. He stands flat-footed and swings, Paige says, commenting that "Joe DiMaggio is good, but that Gehring, he's REAL good."

Junior Thompson, pitcher for the Cincinnati Reds was a "cousin" as far as Eddie Dancsick, Appleton Papermaker manager was concerned when they played in the Three-Eye league.

Notes off the scorebook at the Manitowoc-Seymour game: Manitowoc fans were present in large numbers, and a couple brought a big tub, apparently insulated against the weather, full of bottle beer. They had a big time orating and guzzling.

Ziggy Zigmund, occasionally a Manitowoc infielder, and Shorty Zuidmuller, Seymour first sacker, almost mixed on one occasion. Zigmund was horned into a Seymour argument with the umpire and Nicodem chased him away. When he got tough with Smiley, Zuidmuller threw down his glove, grabbed Ziggy by the shirt and was ready to cuff him.

Seymour kicked about Hesik balking in the fourth when he caught Jacobs off first base. The umpires refused to call it but more than one person connected with baseball thought it was a balk. Hesik started his usual delivery but in the process came to a momentary halt and then delivered the ball to first instead of the plate.

Later in the game Hesik sought to have a piece of tape put on a finger on his throwing hand when he apparently was starting a blister. The umpires refused to allow it and in the meantime Bill Row of Seymour took a walk all for nothing. He never got a chance to protest.

The interest in last week's football guessing contest was exceptionally good considering it was the first week. But the guesses on correct scores weren't as high as usual.

Here are the winners:

Appleton—Frank Wettengel, 214 N. State street, wins after a 3-way tie was broken. He picked Washington over New York correctly, missed two scores by two points each and had the most winners.

Neenah—Jack Driscoll, 545 S. Commercial street, who picked Pittsburgh over Detroit, 10 to 7.

Little Chute—Jerry Peeters, who picked Green Bay East over Appleton by 19 to 0.

Kaukauna—Merritt Kavanaugh, route 3, who picked Pittsburgh over Detroit.

The other districts had no correct scores.

Feiner Beers Take Lone Lead

Louis Freude and Bud Stach Share Individual Honors

Feiner Beers took a lone lead in the City Major league with a 3-game victory over Club 333 during initial matches at Arcade alleys last night. The Feiners had a top team game of 939 while Mellow Brews clouted high team series of 2,896.

Bud Stach rammed a top triple of 580 while Louis Freude battered a 231 for individual game honors. Other high games included H. Brock 216, E. Wegner 203, F. Meyer 211, Wally Robblee 220 201. Bud Stach 215 200, R. Hauert 201, C. Streitz 207 203, O. Baurain 214, E. Herb 206 and I. Weiss 209.

Athletics Ask Waivers On $65,000 Shortstop

Philadelphia—(N)—The Record said today that the Philadelphia Athletics asked waivers 10 days ago on Benny McCoy, second baseman who cost Connie Mack $65,000 last spring.

The newspaper said none of the other major league clubs put in a bid at the $7,500 waiver price because "they did not consider the blonde youngster worth the $10,000 Mack is paying for him for this season and 1941."

The Athletics paid McCoy a $45,000 bonus to sign a two-year contract at $10,000 a year after the second baseman was declared a free agent by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis in his order disbanding the Detroit farm system.

The Deacon, A Mild Family Man, Cracks Winning Whip Over Reds

BY JOHN FRYE

Cincinnati—(N)—The man behind it all—meaning the second straight National league pennant for the Cincinnati Reds—is a 53-year-old church deacon, bird dog fancier, and family man. Name of William Boyd McKechnie.

When the Reds lose a game, the Vine Street Managers Association gives him a critical analysis that you couldn't print here and that's not because the critical session is a star chamber meeting.

But when the Reds win one or two or three or a half dozen or a pennant, the VSMA, with members from the low-water edge of the Ohio River clear up to Dayton, resounds with cries of "I told you so. The greatest guy since John McGraw, George Stallings, or Pat Moran."

Hard To Ruffle

The Deacon sheds both sides of the argument like a barn roof shedding rain. His main interest is to keep his baseball machine going at top speed, to keep 25 athletes happy and active, and to stay out ahead of seven other clubs.

If somebody doesn't like his methods, that guy can talk his head off. If it's the other way around, that OK too.

McKechnie's real function with the Cincinnati Reds is getting the utmost in team play out of the different temperaments on the ball field. With that achieved, the ball game will take care of itself.

Bill tries to build up the self-confidence of each player until the player knows that he can fill his job perfectly.

Bill's criticisms always are accompanied by a pat on the back. But he seeks out a man's strong points and plays up to them.

For instance, is a player for some reason just can't catch signals, Bill doesn't hound him until the guy spends more time watching for the flashes than for the ball.

WILL McKECHNIE: 'The Man Behind It All'

Instead, Bill just whispers what he wants in the fellow's ear. Then the player can go ahead without wondering whether he's obeying orders.

With few exceptions, McKechnie "gets along" with players. It's no sentimental "dear papa" stuff, but kind of wordless understanding.

Bill has a place for sentiment, of course, but it's at home with the family. The ball field is where you play ball.

Seymour, Ships Clash Sunday in Season's Finale

Northern Team's Diamond Will be Scene of Struggle

Seymour — The most important baseball that has been staged here in years is scheduled for Sunday afternoon at Fair grounds where Manager Bill Row's aggregation will cross bats with the Manitowoc Shipbuilders in the third and deciding contest of the Northern State league's championship play-off series.

It is "Even-Stephen" so far. The Ships won the opening engagement two weeks ago at Manitowoc by a 2-1 score but Seymour copped the verdict 3-2, in last Sunday's battle at Green Bay, which was staged in the morning as a prelude to the Packer-Bear gridiron encounter.

The series has been nip and tuck so far and another thrilling encounter is looked for this weekend. The title winners get a goodly portion of the gate receipts and it is a s'fe bet that all the players will be bearing down plenty to get that "Extra" cash to help them out with the winter's coal bills.

Three umpires, Peggy Worden and Tommy Tomcheck of Two Rivers and Paul Herr of Brillion will handle the crucial fracas and President Bernard J. Neumann will be the Northern State league's official representative at the contest.

Budge faced Walter Senior, Louisville, Ky., pro, and Lawrence college and Neenah tennis coach, in the quarter-finals. Karel Kozeluh, Greenwich, Conn. veteran and three-time pro champion played John Nogrady, Montclair, N. J., in the other quarter-final singles matches scheduled at the Town and Tennis club.

Art Hendrix, Annapolis, Md., and Ken Napier, Phoenix, Ariz., took up where they left off yesterday at darkness in a second round engagement. Napier won the first set, 11-9 and lost the second, 6-4. Hendrix led, 2-1, in the third set when play was stopped.

Bill Tilden and Fred Perry, two other top contenders, reached the quarter-finals yesterday, both with easy victories.

Special arrangements will be made to accommodate men, aged 21 to 35, who are eligible for selective military service.

Kimberly Drills Savagely for Tilt With Little Chute

Kimberly—The Kimberly village will take on the aspects of a convention city Friday night when St. John High school of Little Chute tackles Coach Hamann's gridders in what always is considered a crucial game for both villages.

The Papermakers licked the Hollanders in their own back yard last year by a large score. The Dutchmen figured Kimberly to be an easy victim but when the smoke cleared away and the fans couldn't digest anymore hot dogs, Kimberly was in command of the ball on the Chuters 4-inch line, giving Coach Hamann's tribe a swell victory.

But this year appears to be a different story. The Papermakers are a new squad and just how they will click is not known. The Dutchmen should be stronger, having a veteran team on the field. The Kimberly mentor is sending his squads through hard drills this week to at least give the fans a good idea of what to expect Friday evening. Little Chute fans will be here in groves and Kimberly never has let the team down. Everything points to a tough battle between two good schools.

Terrors Given Hard Workouts

Coaches Impressing Need for Speed and More Aggressiveness

Appleton High school football squad yesterday afternoon completed two hard days of practices designed to get some aggressiveness into the line and a bit more finesse in the backfield. The Terrors will open their home season Saturday afternoon with Sheboygan North here.

Defeated by Green Bay East Friday evening at the Bay, the Terrors indicated they weren't ready to get tough in their various assignments. So Monday evening Coach John Mack took the line-men, teamed them up as they work in a game and sent them through exercise after exercise. They started out slowly but were an aggressive lot before the workout ended.

In the meantime, Coach Myron Seims had the backs running the ball against other backs with blockers trying to clear the way. It also was a long, hard session which showed considerable need for more of the same.

Tuesday evening both Mack and Seims had the line-men and the boys were treated to a tougher evening than the night before. The need to get away to a fast charge, to be aggressive and tough was driven home to each lad. Along about the time a halt was called several had a new conception of how football must be played.

Coach Pete Bries had the backs pivoting and running with the ball last evening in an effort to get them moving faster. Some of them still get around with the agility of a cow pulling out of the mud but if they work hard enough should be able to accomplish something before the end of the season.

Terror coaches feel that Saturday's game with North probably is the only one where the locals will not be under the usual handicap—lack of experience. North was the only club Appleton defeated last season and there's a huge desire to repeat.

E. Lemmers Hits 531 In Kimberly Pin Loop

Kimberly—E. Lemmers rolled a 531 series for high honors in the Women's league last week while F. Walsh showed high game of 202. The Little Chute Bottlers won two from Adler Bros. with J. Cavil rolling 530 and 198. M. Roovers had a 462 series and a 173 game. For the Braus, E. Lemmers received her 531 and 187 game. A. Fickel rolled a 408 series and a 167 game.

The Jolly Five took two from Mellow Brews with F. Walsh rolling 468 and 202. G. Behling got 444 and 187. Frassetto had 157. For the Brews G. Courchane had 447 and 156 and B. Hertzfeldt 444 and 159.

Not Taking Any Chances

Recalling these narrow margins of victory, the Packers are not taking any chances on letting the Chicago "red birds" chalk up the second defeat for the Green Bay club. Slowly and cautiously, Coach Lambeau is rebuilding his offensive and defensive play with special attention on blocking, passing and tackling. Assistant Coach "Red" Smith also is having some "special" sessions with his line men and from end to end the line promises to be a lot stronger Sunday.

Lambeau Tells Gridders to Forget Bears

Team Responds to Practice Call With Determined Attitude

Green Bay — "Forget the Bears!" With this command Coach E. L. (Curly) Lambeau called his Green Bay Packers back to the practice field Tuesday for the first of a week of hard drills to reshape the Pro league champion's battle lines for the crucial tilt with the Chicago Cardinals next Sunday at State Fair park in Milwaukee. The kickoff is at 2 p. m.

And it was a determined and grim Packer squad that responded. The carefree attitude that has more or less dominated practice thus far in the 1940 campaign was gone and every back and lineman, knowing what defeat tastes like, went about his assignments with an attitude that "it won't happen next Sunday."

Point Out Many Flaws

Coach Lambeau's initial task was to point out many flaws in the Bear contest. Smarting from a 41 to 10 upset by the crew of George Halas, the 1939 National champions to a man found after the game was over that the actual loss was not as bothersome as to have had an enviable game winning streak broken by the Chicago crew.

Oddly enough, it was the same Chicago Bears that did the trick. It was on Nov. 5 last year at Wrigley field in the "Windy City" and at the end of the 60-minute contest, a bruising one in which the lead changed a half-dozen times, the "Bruins" turned the trick by a 3-point margin, 30 to 27. The Cardinal game Sunday will be the first of a home-and-home series, the second being billed for Comiskey park in Chicago on Nov. 10. In 1939 the champions beat the Cards twice, first at Green Bay by a count of 14 to 10 and later at State Fair park by one touchdown, 27 to 20.

During the season he played on each team in different leagues so when they finally opposed each other he didn't leave the mound. He pitched 16 innings, giving five hits to the winners and seven to the losers.

Softball Pitcher Is Both Winner and Loser

Phoenix, Ariz.—(P)—Pat Patrick, softball pitcher, won and lost the same game, 2 to 1. He hurled for both teams.

During the season he played on each team in different leagues so when they finally opposed each other he didn't leave the mound. He pitched 16 innings, giving five hits to the winners and seven to the losers.

Odds on Comiskey-Baer Fight Are Scrambled Like an Egg

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
New York—(P)—Out of the question box: Is it news that Gene Tunney, offered $15,000 for a piece of Pat Comiskey a couple of months back? ... And Bill Daley wouldn't sell? ... Are you surprised to hear your Yankees, who were laid to rest with full ceremonies only two days ago, are now only 4 to 1 to cop from both the Tigers and the cry babies? ... What's this about old Harry Stuhldreher having his troubles already at Wisconsin, early as it is? ... What with Don Kolbus dropping football for the year and Hal Rooney still nursing that bad knee? ...

Cailliflower Market Report
Odds on the Pat Comiskey, Max Baer party tomorrow have been scrambled like an egg. ... The Irishman now is 5 to 7 favorite. ... Which is making Maxie giggle plenty. ... And Ancil Hoffman, who is as careless with his oceanus as he is with his right arm, has just bet 10 G's on his Max to put the crusher on Pat. ...

If the Reds hit the 100-mark in the games won column (they're 96 now) they'll be the first to ring the bell in the National league since the Cubs went into triple figures with their hair-raising 21-game string in '35.

Today's Guest Star
Billy Stepp, Portland Oregonian: "Bill Terry has a complex against Lefty O'Doul-developed ball players, regardless of what his scouts say. In the past, Lefty offered Terry such players as Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams and Dom DiMaggio, but the Giants weren't interested. Now Lefty wants Bill to buy Ted Jennings and Heinie Groh, who scouts for the Giants, has seconded it. Wonder if Terry'll forget his personal feelings on this one?" (Ed note: Brother, a Terry never forgets—and Brooklyn wouldn't let him, any way.)

Vikes Will Work Under the Lights

Practice at Spencer Field Is Scheduled For Thursday Night

Lawrence college gridders, with their first Midwest conference game only a few days away, will drill under lights Thursday night at the W. Spencer street field. It will be from 8 to 9 o'clock. The workout was arranged because the Vikes will invade Grinnell, Ia., Saturday for a night game with the Pioneers. And because there definitely is a difference between a night game and an afternoon contest, Coach Bernie Heseltown sought at least one trial under the arcs.

Lawrence drills have been going along satisfactorily with one exception. Art Kemmer, co-captain and fullback, who usually has a skinned nose all season, suffered a fractured nose the other afternoon. He was out for a light workout last evening and insists he'll be able to play Saturday behind the protection of an iron mask.

Yesterday's drill saw Vince Jones, a co-captain, and Leroy Lubnow, the two Viking tackles, turning in their best efforts to date. Jones has been bothered with a leg injury while Lubnow was unable to rejoining back to help coach the Wolverine gridders.

Thought For Today

Cardinals, Bears Battle This Evening

Chicago—(P)—The Chicago Cardinals, a rookie-studded squad under a new coach, face their biggest hurdle of the season tonight in a National Football league game with the Chicago Bears.

The Bears, fresh from a 41 to 10 triumph over the title-holding Green Bay Packers, are heavy favorites to whip their home-town rivals under the arc lights of Comiskey park.

The Cardinals return to Comiskey park this season after playing at Wrigley field the past 10 years, hoping to build up the same cross-town rivalry which has meant so much financially to the Cubs and White Sox in baseball.

The Cards, piloted now by Jimmy Conzelmann, are an almost entirely new team. Four rookies will be in the starting lineup tonight, with 18 others ready for service.

The two tackles who performed so well in 1938 when Lawrence won the Midwest title and their efforts have helped to wipe the hang-dog look off Coach Bernie Heseltown's face.

Bernie has been old man Gloom himself over the Grinnell game. Reports from Iowa are the Pioneers are all steamed up about their football prospects and really expect to go places. But while they have a big squad, the biggest in the loop according to reports, the men are learning from a new coach.

Max Says He'll Whip Comiskey

Can't See How Kid Can Box an 'Old Guy Who Knows the Tricks'

Jersey City, N. J.—(P)—Take it easy, folks—Max Baer still talks a good fight.

It's not the same king of the nightclubs who dazzled cafe society and associated sororities and fraternities back in the mid '30s, but madcap Maxie still thinks he's good enough to take care of a "young punk" like Patrick Edward Comiskey.

Madcap Maxie has been undergoing conditioning of sorts at nearby Newark for this heavyweight contest, but he's a far cry from the fellow who drew all those "oohs" and "aahs" from the feminine "experts" five or six years ago. Yet, he thinks he'll do that thing to Patrick Edward of Paterson tomorrow night with no more trouble than it takes him to say "Hello, honey."

"Don't worry, Pally," he admonished today. "How can a guy like this kid expect to step in there and box an old guy who knows all the tricks like me?"

Three Big 10 Teams to Get Tests Saturday

BY TOM SILER

Chicago—(AP)—The football faithful of the Midwest who live and die with every touchdown at Ohio State, Michigan and Minnesota should know the worst by Saturday night.

Each of these schools has been tabbed by the grid prophets as a ranking contender for sectional and national honors this fall. The fans won't have to wait long to pass judgment not only on their favorite team, but also on the prophets.

All three open the season Saturday against formidable rivals.

Ohio State, top choice for the conference title, takes on a deepened but still tough Pitt eleven at Columbus; Michigan's talented squad flies west to play the University of California and Minnesota's bulky outfit entertains the University of Washington, Jimmy Phelan's powerful Pacific coast conference eleven. The only other Big Ten team opening Saturday is Purdue which faces a breather in Butler.

Minnesota, despite the presence of 23 lettermen and a fleet set of backs, appears to have the toughest assignment. Washington had a fine eleven a year ago and all hands are on deck again.

Michigan rates a slight edge over California, especially if the crippled veterans are in shape for the inaugural.

The Bucks, led by Don Scott and hampered only by a shortage of flank reserves, have a definite edge on the Pitt eleven, but the engagement should be far from a walk-away. Ohio State has not lost an opening game since 1894.

Jerry Ankeny, veteran quarterback, still is out of Iowa practice with an ankle injury. The Hawk-eyes have their last double daily practice today as classes start Thursday. Gene Lyons, end, Dick Thornally, tackle, and Mark Hoskins, back, are three sophomores rated a good chance to start when Wisconsin opens against Marquette Oct. 5.

Bob Zupke is in a bad way for guards and centers at Illinois. He has given his boys all their offensive stuff but poor blocking on attack has robbed the plays of their effectiveness. Ray Dumke is being groomed to call signals in the Indiana backfield in case Eddie Herbert's leg injury keeps him out of the Hoosiers' opener with Texas. Northwestern may not be so hard up for second string linemen as expected if the soph and left-overs continue their recent rapid improvement.

Club 333 won two games from Mellow Brew with Frank Hammen getting his 558 and a 210. For the losers, Jerry Lamers had 587 and games of 211 and 213. Mart Vanden Burcht had 223 and Baker Versteegen had 543 and 211.

Badgers Go Back To Fundamentals

Madison—(AP)—The University of Wisconsin football squad went back to fundamentals today following a slow practice session yesterday which Coach Harry Stuhldreher described as productive of "no good results."

In an effort to improve offensive technique, the Badger coach ran the squad through a dummy scrimmage, but the poor blocking and timing nullified most of his work.

The squad looked fairly good on defense and showed improvement in passing, Stuhldreher said.

Al Lorenz, of Oak Park, Ill., senior end, and Bob Baumann, of Harvey, Ill., sophomore wingman, absented themselves from practice to write examinations. Both must obtain passing grades to be eligible this season.

ECUADOR LOWLANDS

If someone asked you to name a country with the shape of a piece of pie, what would you answer? Among the nations of the world, there is one which is very nearly of that shape. It is known as "Ecuador."

The English meaning of the name is "Equator." The line of the equator runs through this South American country.

If you want to find winter in Ecuador, you will need to go up a mountain. There is plenty of summer in the lowlands—too much, in fact—but you can reach cool places if you go high enough.

It may seem hard to think of snow in the middle of the torrid zone, but Ecuador has great fields of it. Many of the mountain peaks are covered with snow all the year around.

The capital city—Quito—is not in the region of everlasting snow, but it is almost two miles above sea level, and has an excellent climate. It has a population of close to 100,000, and among the people are more Indians than whites.

Quito is one of the very old cities of South America. It existed long before the Spaniards conquered the country. It was a center of a nation of Indians, the home of the leading Indian chief of that region.

The streets of Quito are narrow, steep and winding. It is quite a task to walk from one end of the city to the other. The women of the national capital wear brightly colored shawls, the colors including green, yellow and red. Almost all of the Indians—men, women and children—go bare-footed.

Thirty miles from Quito is the highest active volcano in the world. It is called Cotopaxi.

Cotopaxi rises almost four miles above sea level. At the top is a cone more than 4,000 feet high, and this cone is entirely covered with snow.

Cotopaxi has erupted half a dozen times in the past century. Sometimes it sends out lava, but more often it blows out smoke, flame and hot ashes.

There have been times when fields of snow have been melted by Cotopaxi's lava or hot ashes, causing floods which poured down on the world below.

Gridders are Entertained at Lions Banquet

Kaukauna Squad Hears Packer Assistant Coach, Sees Movies of Games

Kaukauna — The largest group since the Lions club first sponsored the affair five years ago gathered at Hotel Kaukauna last night to eat, listen to Richard "Red" Smith, assistant Green Bay Packer coach, and see the Packers in action on the screen.

Earl Mollett, acting Lion Tamer, kept the 87 present well provided with informal entertainment during the dinner. Hal Van Every, Minnesota halfback now on his way to stardom with the Packers, played two piano solos; John Vette and Leo Rohan gave vocal solos; Karl Giordana twanged out his imitation of a saxophone; Ray Hurst took over the piano for a while; Rita Belongia sang two solos while Lorraine Martin played. Dean Baier, second assistant manager, came through with his Donald Duck act.

They Liked the Draw! In addition to Van Every, Smith brought along Ray Riddick, Fordham end, Lou Brock, Purdue halfback, and Stanley Johnson, Georgia guard. The boys asked Johnson questions just to get more and more of his southern drawl.

J. W. Weyenberg, Lions president, gave the address of welcome, with Carl Runte toastmaster. Speaking briefly were James F. Cavanaugh, superintendent of schools; Olin G. Dryer, principal; Coaches Paul E. Little and Guy Krumm, and Clifford H. Kemp, physical education instructor.

Little commented briefly on the season's prospects, stating he had the largest squad, 54, during his 11 years here. "We have a good football team, as strong as last year's," Little admitted, but added, "other teams are stronger this year."

Smith introduced the Packer players, then came the showing of the football pictures.

Menasha High Drama Club Will Present Play "Journey's End"

Menasha—The Dramatic club of Menasha High school will present a scene from "Journey's End," the well-known World War play, as its first dramatic effort of the year. Try-outs for parts are being conducted by Miss Betty Ann Johnson, speech instructor at the school.

The cast calls for nine boys only and the girls will handle the costuming, stage setting, ushering, publicity and other details with the assistance of some of the boys.

The part from the play selected by Miss Johnson is from the second act and pictures the men in the trenches the day before the big drive. It is the most dramatic piece attempted at the school.

The dramatic club is organized on a temporary basis. After the first production, those students who have earned enough points last year and this will be elected members of the club while others will be candidates for membership. Officers will be elected later.

Approve Survey Of Sewer System

Neenah Officials Want Study To Curb Overload of Water

Neenah—The council committee on public improvements decided at a meeting last night at city hall to have the Neenah-Menasha sewerage commission conduct a survey of the sewer system in Neenah. The estimated cost of the survey will be $1,550.

The commission has outlined a complete survey, including location of all storm and sanitary sewers, inspecting all catch basins, investigating roof water and cistern overflows, and searching for other incidental and surface water connections to or leaks into the sewer system. A recommendation as to the elimination of any defects will be made.

The purpose of the survey is to determine the causes of the large amount of water in the sewer system which results in an overload on the disposal plant and sewerage backing up into basements.

The committee voted to charge $1 a foot for installation of sewer laterals and authorized payment of extra time at city expense to WPA finishers on concrete jobs to get concrete work done.

Old Livery Stable Being Razed to Make Way for Gas Station

Menasha—The automobile is completing the rout of the horse-drawn carriage days with the razing of the old livery stable at the southeast corner of Broad and Milwaukee streets to make way for a filling station. The red building is one of the oldest frame structures in Menasha and was used as a livery stable in the 1890's. In recent years it has been used as a warehouse by the Menasha Furniture company.

The building was ordered razed by Fire Chief Paul Theimer and H. O. Haugh, city health officer, as a fire and health hazard, according to instructions from the Menasha council. L. S. Zeh, Appleton, owner of the property, will build a super-service gasoline station on the site.

PTA's To Ask Council For Bike Safety Lanes

Neenah—The Kimberly school Parent Teacher association authorized appointment of a committee to work jointly with a similar committee from the senior high school association in approaching the Neenah common council to secure safety lanes for bicycles at its Tuesday evening meeting in the school.

The action followed discussion by parents who contended that the 3-lane traffic regulation, with parked cars on either side of Commercial street, left little or no room for students on bicycles. It was alleged that motorists driving in the lanes paid scant attention to the bicyclists, making the situation extremely hazardous.

C. E. Cass was named chairman of the safety committee and Mrs. Byron Clark, president, will appoint five other members this week.

Names Committees

Mrs. Clark announced her committee appointments for the year. Mrs. R. P. Brooks will be membership chairman, Mrs. Marvin Hansen, hospitality chairman, Mrs. Kenneth Hatch, Mrs. James Powers, Mrs. William A. Riggs, Mrs. Ruth Sullivan, Mrs. Ray Vandewalker, Mrs. E. E. Lampert, Mrs. Edwin Kalfahs, Mrs. Charles Shoman and Mrs. Henry Jung, room representatives; Mrs. Henry Johnson as historian; Miss Margaret Klein, publicity chairman, and C. J. Cannon, program chairman. Mrs. James Dreyer was named legislative chairman.

C. F. Hedges, superintendent of schools, introduced the faculty members.

Mrs. N. C. Jersild and Mrs. A. Cummings were named as members of the nominating committee to present the name of a secretary for election at next month's meeting. Gordon Alberts had been chosen secretary last spring but as he has been transferred to the Roosevelt school as principal, a new secretary will have to be selected.

The program for the evening featured a panel discussion as a parent discussed what he expected of the teacher, a teacher told what the teachers expected of the parents and a school board member discussed what the board expects of both the parents and teachers.

Fred Benzen, representing the parents, declared that parents did not expect the teachers to be supermen but he believed they did have a right to expect a certain standard of excellence so as to aid the child in acquiring those tools which it has been found, from long experience are necessary and reliable; a thorough knowledge of the subject and the ability to impart that knowledge and make it stick; fairness and impartiality.

Urges Cooperation

Miss Nell Hubbard, Kimberly school principal, urged the parents to cooperate with the teachers in maintenance of regular attendance and in discipline problems since "the principle duty of the teacher is to teach and when a student interferes with that duty, there may be necessity for discipline."

Charles Vette, member of the Neenah board of education, stating that he was not officially representing any attitude of the board, emphasized that teachers and parents must cooperate in the teaching of children. Parents are not sending their children to school to get rid of them and teachers are not teaching a subject but children. The right attitudes and the right behavior patterns are the job of both parents and teachers. Mr. Vette emphasized as stressed training for good citizenship.

"Are we doing as good a job as we can do to develop fully and efficiently a type of education that makes for the best citizenship," he asked as he quoted statistics on the cost of crime in America.

Zephyrs to Play St. Norbert's in League Contest

St. Mary Gridders Lead in Conference Championship Chase

Menasha — St. Mary High school gridders will meet the St. Norbert High school team in their second conference game of the year Friday night under the lights at Butte des Morts field.

The Zephyrs lead the current championship chase with one victory. That was a 46 to 0 win over the St. Joseph Indian school at Keshena. However, the game didn't give a true line on the Zephyrs as the opposition was weak. The Zephyrs were ragged in losing to St. Benedict, Milwaukee, in the opener. The game Friday night probably will be a much more severe test.

The Keshena squad of only 16 players did give the Zephyr coaches, Fred Trish and Joseph Kores, an opportunity to use their reserves. Twenty-six players were taken on the trip and every one of them was used. Some of the former varsity players, demoted because of poor work in the opener, showed improvement in spirit and in their play Sunday.

New Scoring Mark

The 46 points scored by the Zephyrs is a new high in conference scoring for the team. The previous conference high was last year's 38 to 0 victory over Little Chute. The all-time high scoring mark for the team was a 48 to 0 win over the Oshkosh St. Vincent Junior High team in 1928. The most decisive defeat suffered by the Zephyrs was 46 to 0 by Manitowoc in 1936.

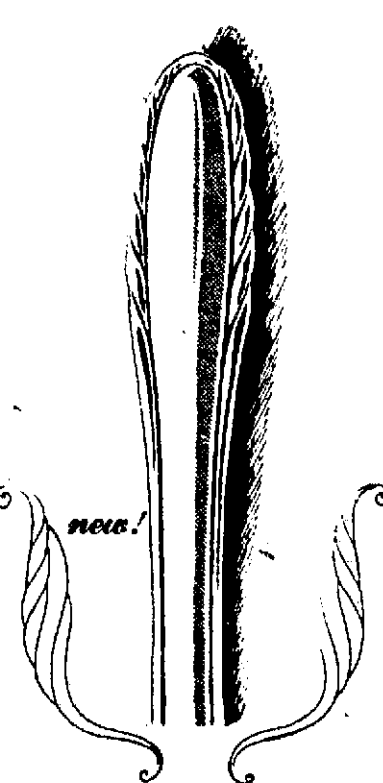

The Zephyrs lead in victories in their series, eight to five. The De Pere school won four decisive victories in 1929 and 1930 after which the Zephyrs won four successive years. St. Norbert won for the last time in 1936 by a 6 to 0 score after which the Zephyrs have run up four more victories. The margin last year was only 6 to 0. In 13 games the Zephyrs have outscored the Green Squires 187 to 148.

William Krause Voted for 42 Years, Becomes Citizen

Neenah—William Krause is a citizen of the United States. To Mr. Krause, who is 63 years old and lives at 1115 Harrison street, that means a great deal, for during the last year he has been a disappointed man.

For 42 years, Mr. Krause believed he was a citizen and had voted in Neenah since he was 21 years of age. Then recently he found out that he wasn't a citizen. Mr. Krause was born in Germany, coming to the United States with his father in 1891. His father had taken out his first papers and had applied for his second papers when he was killed.

Mr. Krause said today: "When I was 21 I went to the polls to vote, and they told me I was a citizen. One of the election officials said his father had signed my father's papers. When the World war came, they gave me my recognition card when they asked me if I would fight and I said I would."

Mr. Krause was admitted to citizenship Tuesday morning by Circuit Judge Henry P. Hughes at Oshkosh.

He said, "I'm a citizen, now, thank the Lord. When they told me a year ago I wasn't a citizen, I was ready to fight. I'm glad, and if I'd known about this 42 years ago, I would have become a citizen then."

and their friends have been invited to attend the social event which is to follow the St. Mary-St. Norbert football game Friday evening. An invitation has been issued also to the student body of St. Norbert High school.

Air Defenses Of U. S. Weak, Lawrence Says

Scores New Deal for Allowing Long Delay
In Plane Production

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—The most amazing example of indifference to a nation's safety is in the United States of America where both Republicans and Democrats, including President Roosevelt himself, have allowed a country of 130,000,000 people to become defenseless against air attack. Despite the propaganda and erroneous statements, and indeed misleading information issued by the administration itself, the fact remains that the United States has less than 750 first-line combat planes in both the army and navy. It will take at least 18 months for the necessary combat planes to be built. As a consequence Herr Hitler would have a relatively easy time in the interim bombing American cities and towns with long-range bombers.

Do the American people know these facts? There has been a studied effort to keep the truth from them because if they realized the significance of it they would be disillusioned about Mr. Roosevelt's alleged "experience" and demand that the New Deal be turned out of power at the coming elections. It took the British people quite a while to discover the weaknesses of the Chamberlain government and they did not hesitate even in the middle of a crucial battle to cast the then existing regime and install Mr. Churchill.

Today the administration has sought to cover up its mistakes and failures on defense preparedness by building a lot of business men over here so as to give an impression of great activity and readiness to defend. But the word which has been heard clearly is that some of these business men have balked at the idea of being used for political purposes.

Senator Byrd Right

One story which the records show that Senator Byrd of Virginia Democratic made his first statement about the relatively small number of combat planes actually on hand, the White House endeavored to obtain some sort of statement from the defense commission which would refute the senator's contention. It was found that Senator Byrd was right, but it was sought to convey the idea that he had wrongly interpreted the facts. As the story is told, the president asked that the defense commission authorize a more optimistic statement which he had on his desk about the number of planes on hand and on order, but word came back that the defense commission members wouldn't do it. Thereupon the president is represented as having given out his own deductions based on available data and as having attributed some of this information vaguely to the defense commission.

When United States senators have sought to confirm what was given out at the White House on this occasion they were told by one of the defense commissioners that they had made no written statement, but had given "oral information" and the buck was passed to the war and navy departments.

This kind of a run around has not only strengthened the suspicions of members of congress that they are being misled, but that actually the public is being misled as to the state of our defenses by a lot of promises and expectations. It is most unfortunate that among some members of the staffs of the defense commission itself there is an air of skepticism about the constant effort to use the commission for political purposes. The best information available is that the army has about 250 first-line combat planes, about 65 bombers and no real pursuit planes, but a lot of interceptor planes and training planes which while essential cannot do the work of first-line combat or bombing planes.

The navy is supposed to have between 300 and 400 first-line combat planes and about 200 bombers.

Many "On Order"

Now many contracts have been let and many planes are "on order" or are to be built as a consequence of "letters of intention" furnished by airplane manufacturers, but these tragic and inexcusable delays mean that, though fully warned by the events of September 1938 at Munich, the administration did not use its big majority in both houses to insist on the building of a larger air force. It has used its pressure for many other things of less importance. The White House was given plenty of advice on the subject by returning observers in 1938 and it is not for a moment to be supposed that congress would have refused to build up the air force if the executive had carried his case to the country.

The worst part of the situation is that there is no certainty America will have her big airplane force even in 18 months or two years. For the president has declined to appoint a coordinator with full authority to prevent bottlenecks in production. Already valuable time has been lost by the playing of politics. Mr. Roosevelt declined for instance to push through a settlement of the amortization question either by new law or by regulation this last summer and has sought to impose the blame on business men instead.

The delay in ironing out the tax difficulties arising out of new plant construction has been most serious. The administration has made a regrettable failure of our defenses to date. Based on the past record America may wake up some day as did the French people and discover themselves betrayed by the New Deal politicians who apparently would rather blame anybody but themselves for the serious errors made.

America's air force is today the weakest of any major power at a time when airplanes have conquered a whole continent and are today hammering away at the last citadel of democracy in Europe. That's why

British in Argentine Using Cards to Avoid Enemy Goods

Buenos Aires—(AP)—Brightly colored cards peeping from the purses of British women—and many North Americans and Argentines as well—are not for bridge.

They're a part of the more serious game of war as played on this side of the Atlantic.

The cards, postcard size, and in packets of 11 covered by a transparent envelope, are streamlined versions of the British official "blacklist" designed to discourage purchases of products originating in the countries of Great Britain's enemies, Germany and Italy. During the early months of the war the blacklist question became a confused one due to misunderstanding of brands, types and origins of many products. Then the argument is gaining ground that a business man is needed in the White House, someone who understands production and is not interested in politics as such. For politics and "social gains" and humanitarian intentions do not protect innocent men, women and children when the bombs begin dropping overhead.

Set Open Hours for Traffic Squad Office

Captain Charles Steidl of the county traffic squad announced today that a member of the squad will be at the county office in the highway department quarters at the courthouse from 10 to 12 a. m. daily except Sundays and holidays. Appointments for driver's tests, and for securing other information relative to driving cars and trucks may be made during these open hours, Steidl said.

The United States is the largest producer of raw furs in the world. The little American wild country remains.

idents of Argentina have asked for sets of the cards.

The cards avoid mention of "blacklist." Its idea, explained the sponsors, is to show where the various brands originated, and let the buyer take her choice.
